LETTERS FROM ABROAD

Our Special Correspondence from Paris, London, Madrid, Florence and Havana.

The Transcontinental Railway Investigation to be Reopened.

Notes on Political Movements in Europe.

Rapid Progress of the Work of Reform in England.

A Serious Rupture in the Republican Party in Spain.

The Pope, the Council, and Infallibility.

We present below a number of exceedingly interesting letters from the TIMES correspondents stationed in the leading capitals of Europe, which we have received by the late foreign mails; and also the letter of our Havana correspondent, dispatched by the Columbia from that place on Saturday. It will be seen that the letters give a deal of information regarding political and social movements on the other side of the Atlantic, to which the Cable dispatches received from day to day have but barely alluded.

FRANCE.

The Case of the Transcontinental Railway—Another Political Scandal—The French Army—American Securities in Europe—Small-Pox in Paris.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Friday, May 20, 1870.

The prosecutions in connection with the affair of the Transcontinental Railway, which have remained in abeyance for some months, are it would appear, about to be revived. I heard this morning through a legal friend, a fact which fully bears out the statement I sent to you some months back regarding the influences through which the stock was put upon the French market in spite of its repudiation by the American bankers and the protests of the American journals. Not only were all the usual precautions adopted in such cases by the Syndicate of the Bourse entirely disregarded, but the evidence produced through the aid of Mr. WASHBURNE that the stock was emitted under false pretences, was much as the prospectus stated that it was guaranteed by the Federal Government, was followed by no corrective measures on the part of the French authorities. Hundreds of people of small means were induced to invest their little savings in the concern, through the flaming advertisements which were published in the journals and which were inserted on the express condition that no commentaries were to be made upon them by the editors. For this the French Government was not to be blamed, but what really rendered it culpable was that having allowed the stock to be launched upon the market under exceptional and even suspicious circumstances, it remained deaf to the remonstrances made to it, and permitted the holders of shares to infer from its inaction that it was satisfied that the representations made in the prospectus of the Company were correct. Of course, many were lulled into a false sense of security by this course, and it was only when the shares became worthless or next to worthless that they awoke to the consciousness that they had been shamefully duped, and that people in power had been parties to the imposture. The present Administration having no motive to cover up the corruption or shortcomings of its predecessors, it has decided on allowing these prosecutions to be continued, or rather to be forced on, hoping that they will operate as an additional obstacle to the restoration of M. ROUHER and his partisans to power. This determination has thrown a number of important personages, closely identified with the system of personal government, into a state of great alarm and perplexity. Several of them went yesterday to M. PHILIS, Secretary to the Minister of Justice, and represented to him that unless some attempt were made to quash the prosecutions they would reflect a great deal of scandal, not merely on themselves, ardent supporters of the Empire, but on the Rouher administration. M. PHILIS replied curtly that the only way to strengthen the Empire was to expose and to prevent the repetition of such proceedings, and that so far as the present Ministry were concerned they would do nothing to obstruct the course of justice from any apprehension of the kind. Accordingly this morning summonses have been served on all these personages and among others on the son of M. MAGNE, the Minister of Finance.

ANOTHER POLITICAL SCANDAL.

Gen. FLEURY is daily expected in Paris. There is not a word of truth in the statement that he is in bad odor at the Russian Court. On the contrary, the relations between the two Cabinets have been cemented by his efforts, and the Emperor NICHOLAS as well as the French Emperor, feel most grateful to him for what he has accomplished. This will not prevent the General from being exposed to rather an unpleasant ordeal on his arrival here. He has for some years, as you are aware, held the position of Director of the Haras, which has the care of the improvement of the breed of horses in France. When he was appointed there was a Council of Superintendence (Conseil de Surveillance) in existence, but in 1867 it was suppressed by a simple decree of the Minister without its ever having exercised its functions. The extravagance, waste, and, it is said, corruption, which signalized the management of the Haras under Gen. FLEURY have given such dissatisfaction to the breeders of horses that they have insisted on the re-establishment of the Council of Supervision and a general overhauling of the whole system. M. LOUVET has consented to these measures and the accounts of Gen. FLEURY are accordingly to be subjected to a rigid examination—a proceeding which that imperious and self-satisfied gentleman is not likely to be very well pleased at.

AMERICAN OFFICERS FOR EGYPT.

The Khedive is quietly preparing for the struggle which he has adjourned by his temporary submission to the Porte, by absorbing as much of the combative element as he can attract from your side into his army. Among the American officers who have recently left to join his ranks are Gen. G. Stone, of Massachusetts; Gen. A. W. Reynolds, of Virginia; Col. T. A. Reynolds, of New-Mexico, (both West Point officers;) Gen. Rhett, of South Carolina; Col. W. S. Jenifer, of Maryland; Col. Crowley, Col. W. W. Dunlop, Col. W. H. Ward, Major E. Farry, Major W. P. A. Campbell, and Capt. J. M. Morgan.

THE FRENCH ARMY.

It is said that although highly satisfied with the general result of the plebiscite, the Emperor takes very much to heart the advanced age of so large a proportion of the army, and is resolved if possible to weed it of the malcontents by a fresh reorganization. I cannot exactly see how this is to be done, but to Imperialism nothing seems impossible, after the recent expansiveness of this confiding people.

AMERICAN SECURITIES IN EUROPE.

The notice posted up in the Berlin Exchange-room last week, from the Elders of the Berlin Chamber of Commerce, cautioning people against the purchase of American securities, especially American railroad bonds, unless guaranteed by the Government of the United States, seems to have entirely failed of the effect intended to be produced by it, and is now generally laughed at. People at this side who want to invest in American railroad or other shares will not do so unless they have reliable information as to their being reasonably good securities. Of course, no one will want to buy the shares of the New-York railroads as long as their value is rendered uncertain by the action of a corrupt Judiciary. I am not sure but that the recent occurrence in Berlin may have a beneficial effect on the conduct of railroad directors in the United States. When they find that their profligacy and dishonesty are so closely watched, and so severely commented upon at this side, they may feel some compunction for the disgrace which their conduct is bringing upon the country, and so make some effort at reformation.

THE WEATHER—THE SMALL-POX.

The Summer has set in suddenly upon us, and the heat for the last two days has been blistering. I am sorry to say that the small-pox, so far from diminishing in intensity, is still on the increase. The week just ended shows the largest number of cases that we have had yet. The disease made its appearance in Septembr last, and the first week gave a total of only twelve deaths. Since then it has continued steadily on the increase, and the last weekly report shows a total of 170 deaths—for the seven days the largest we have had yet. The fact, however, does not seem to affect the number of visitors to the city. I have never seen so many Americans here at this season of the year.

REFORM IN ENGLAND.

Rapid Progress of the Work—Education and the Ballot for the People—The Contagious Diseases Act—Evil Influences of the Army and Navy.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, Saturday, May 21, 1870.

The work of reform goes on in England with a strangely-accelerated rapidity. Things that ten years ago seemed dim in a far future—the possibilities of another generation—are now at our doors. Ideas that a few years ago were not only ridiculed but actively persecuted, are now welcomed in Parliament by handsome majorities. Vote by ballot is brought forward as a Government measure—and Charists rub their eyes and wonder whether they are dreaming. Female suffrage passed its second reading in the House, to be thrown out again—but who thought even such a success was possible? In a few days Mr. BUXTON will move for a Royal Commission on the revision of the Bible. The Irish Church has been disestablished—and the English Church is setting her house in order, by making an effort to remove some of her greatest scandals. Thus the Bishop of WINCHESTER has introduced into the House of Lords a bill to prevent the sequestration of livings. Under the existing law, which makes the revenue of a parish, of whatever amount, the private property of the incumbent for life, if he gets into debt it may be seized for the benefit of his creditors, less the small stipend of a curate. Thus a London parish of 20,000 souls, endowed with an income of £2,000 a year, was sequestrated for thirty years—all but £200 a year going to the creditors of a spendthrift Vicar. For a whole generation the parish is disorganized and robbed of its "means of grace" to pay the debts of its graceless pastor. Mr. CROSS has also brought in a bill to prohibit the sale of presentations. These sales of livings at public auction, advertised in the most widely-circulated newspapers, stating all the attractions of income, scenery, society, hunting and fishing, seem very absurd to our unsophisticated notions, but the TIMES, prompted no doubt by the respectability of which it is the acknowledged organ, comes forward to defend them. The time is not distant, I think, when short work will be made of similar arguments. There are ways enough of giving money to the Church besides buying a life income in it by paying a pastor to resign his charge, or buying in the public mart a cure of souls, with a handsome revenue and good fishing.

THE EDUCATION BILL.

As the time approaches for dealing with the Education bill, Mr. FORSTER is busy receiving memorials and deputations, and preparing amendments to his own bill, which he hopes may save trouble to other people. In the Evangelical interest, Lord SHAFTESBURY has made up his mind that if Churchmen can save the Bible and some general religious instruction to the schools, they will give up creeds and catechisms. Almost the whole dissenting interest has taken this ground; not that they would not like to have their own children instructed in their own religious notions, but they are quite determined that others shall not have the same privilege. They are dead against paying rates for teaching Church of England doctrines or Popery, and a great many fancy that there is very little difference between them, and that the child which has been taught the Apostles' Creed is on the road to Rome. The school teachers declare with great unanimity that in twenty years past there has been no religious difficulty. Parents have been content that their children were taught some religion, without much caring what it was, and seeming to believe that any was better than none. Protestants have sent their children to Catholic schools when they were nearest, with no thought of danger. The whole trouble seems to have come at once, and the difficulty is not so much in England as in Ireland. English Protestantism will not consent that a Catholic people shall have Catholic schools, if they can help it. To prevent it, they are ready themselves to give up denominational education. The Quakers waited upon Mr. FORSTER a day or two ago, and warned him that any levying of rates for the support of denominational schools would lead to great difficulty. In civil and economical matters, the majority can govern. Men are taxed and rated to pay for what they are most strongly opposed to—but religion is different. A majority can fix the road to market—to heaven each man must have a way of his own.

THE BALLOT BILL.

The remarks of the Saturday Review on the introduction of the Ballot bill by the Marquis of HARTINGTON, I find rather neat.

"In the last Parliament," it observes, "Lord HARTINGTON and three other members of the great family to which he belongs, represented counties or divisions of counties. They were all useful and accomplished members of the House of Commons, but it may perhaps have occurred to Lord HARTINGTON that it would have been a remarkable coincidence if three sons and a brother of a powerful nobleman had been selected exclusively for their personal merits, but it is possible that a farmer who has voted for a good candidate to please his landlord, may henceforth vote for a bad candidate to please himself."

And, of course, more or less complimentary reference is made to the American system:

"It is not improbable that when the habit of deferring to landlords or social superiors has once been effectually broken through, the independence which will have been achieved will be consciously displayed. In the United States no man takes the trouble to keep his vote secret; and it is remarkable that in a country where political vituperation is practised with unbounded license, political enemies never charge one another with the crime of having taken advantage of the ballot to betray their party. Almost the only important result which is not anticipated from the change is an improvement in the character of the House of Commons. The Americans care little or nothing for the sinews of representatives who have, except in times of extraordinary agitation, no important share in the government of the country. It may be permitted to doubt whether England can afford to allow the House of Commons to sink to the level of the House of Representatives. The ballot, combined with the late increase of the constituency, and the consequent alteration of its character, will additionally tend to transfer the choice of members to professional managers of elections. As in the United States, the Committee or Club of the party will be courted in place of the constituency; and it will occasionally be bought. Managing Committees will be absolutely indifferent to capacity or attainments; but it is possible that they may select a member with respect for money. Any kind of member is better than an obscure and penniless adventurer."

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES ACT.

The discussion of the Contagious Diseases act is approaching a crisis. It is an astounding matter altogether. If England wanders a squeamish country, it has not bravely over it. Think, if you can, of large public meetings being held in London, Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, Leeds, &c., of mixed audiences, addressed by both men and women, going into the whole subject of these acts, with all its disgusting details! At a large meeting in the Town Hall of Birmingham a few nights ago, where women formed a large part of the assembly, speeches were made by two Methodist clergymen, the most indecent I have ever seen in print, and the papers declare that they were much worse than thus reported. One of them—that of Rev. Dr. RULE—was so outrageous that Rev. ARTHUR O'NEIL, a Baptist minister, publicly retracted him, saying, that if he had known the sort of speeches which would be made to a mixed audience, he would have protested against holding such a meeting.

"It was," he said, "a wrong and shameful thing that subjects such as those mentioned that evening should be brought before a mixed assembly; and he doubted very much whether the priests and monks, about whom Dr. RULE had talked so much, ever said anything resembling that gentleman had done. He reminded the reverend gentleman, by the way, that poor, misruled Ireland was the freest from those sensual impurities which afflicted England."

And the Mayor of Birmingham presided at this meeting, and one of the Aldermen introduced the first resolution! But the opposition to the law and its extension is very violent. The mob, incited, it must be said, by women who ought to know what they are about, and who are encouraged in turn by such philosophers as Mr. J. S. MILL and Prof. FRANCIS NEWMAN, seems determined that nothing shall be done to purify the country from one of its most deadly evils—at least that it shall not be done in the way recommended by the élite of the medical profession and the clergy, and adopted, after a full investigation, by the unanimous vote of both Houses of Parliament. In the meantime the Association for promoting the extension of the act of 1866 to the civil population of the United Kingdom, has just issued its third report, a pamphlet of 90 pages, in which the objections urged against the act seem to be triumphantly answered. This Association consists of men of the highest position, professional and social, in all parts of the United Kingdom. Memorials in favor of the extension of the act, from clergy and laity, and persons of the highest eminence and attainments, have been sent to the Legislature. The letter of Miss GARRETT, which, the Committee says, "for lucid expression and comprehensive argument leaves little to be desired," has been very widely circulated.

"We believe," says the report, "that the time will come when we shall look back with astonishment at the legislation of this country, which almost alone among civilized nations, so long permitted a dire disease, affecting innocent persons and children yet unborn, to rage unchecked through the land, and which made no efforts to rescue a degraded portion of our population, more stinted against than sinning, from the consequences of a career destructive alike to body and soul."

And the facts presented in this report are really very terrible. Forty-three per cent. of the total out-patients of Guy's Hospital are affected with these diseases. Of twenty thousand patients yearly treated at the Royal Ophthalmic Hospital, one in five is so affected; at the Throat Hospital, fifteen per cent.; at the Children's Hospital, twenty per cent.; and at all the hospitals and dispensaries the children so affected are nearly in the same proportion. It was, therefore, the opinion of Sir THOMAS WATSON, Bart., F. R. S., &c., &c., that "steps should be taken to restrain a disease which counts its victims not only among the victims and self-indulgent, but among virtuous women and innocent children by hundreds of thousands." I do not propose to give even the most hasty summary of this report, which from a professional, moral and social point of view, is of great interest, but it shows, I think conclusively, that the law is so carefully guarded from abuse as it can well be, and that it has thus far, when not violently interfered with, been very successful in its operation, and beneficial to all classes concerned. I have said that the party which opposes its extension and demands its repeal, offer no substitute. There is a recommendation of voluntary effort in the establishment of hospitals, and the reformation of the social evil, but all such efforts have notoriously failed. Dr. C. DRYSDALE, one of the Secretaries of the Repeal Association, has his theory on the subject. He thinks the only way to get rid of the evil:

"Is by making marriage earlier, and by enjoining on young couples the necessity of not having more children than they can easily maintain. Facility of divorce, he adds, "which has worked admirably in Indiana in the United States, could be introduced into England, and with such and like arrangements, mankind might attain happiness and stamp out disease."

Perhaps the most important testimony adduced in favor of the act in this report, beyond its array of statistics, is the following letter from Rev. JOHN PRIDEAUX, Vicar of Dover, an old garrison town, and long one of the worst in England. He says the experience of the working of the act at Dover shows:

"First, that at least sixty per cent. of the worst elements of virulent contagion have departed from the town; second, that open indecency and downright assuming temptation have disappeared by one-half (I think I meet them nightly in public places); third, that a very large portion of the people of sound sense and feeling belonging to us, medical especially, is in favor of the act's working."

It seems but too probable that the violent and indecent clamor raised against this law will prevent its extension—it may even procure its repeal. The most its friends now seem to hope for is a compromise by which the act will be continued in force at the naval and military stations, with a Royal Commission to examine into its working and results. That something ought to be done few but the most prejudiced and fanatical gad deny. The right to go about poisoning people in any way ought not to be, if it really is a part of the British Constitution. If it is, all I can say is that the British Constitution will suffer for it.

EVIL INFLUENCES OF ARMY AND NAVY.

In the course of his speech at the contagious diseases meeting at Birmingham, Rev. Mr. O'NEIL spoke in an uncomplimentary manner of the British army and navy, and attributed to them a large share of the social evil in its worst results. He said:

"As one who for two years was a compounder in a military hospital at Malta, he was bold to affirm that the great source of the evil which they were trying to stamp out was to be found in the noble army about which Burke had talked. The speaker refused to acknowledge that it was a noble army; he knew better. So long as they persisted in keeping five millions of poor, miserable, ignorant, idle, homeless, unmarried soldiers in European countries, so long would they have the great evil of which they complained. If the good Queen who entertained the meeting that night had come forward when JOSIAH STRUTT and other good men were trying to lessen the hard armed force of this country it would have looked better of them. The evil now began to come home to themselves, as it were, but even still they seemed loth to acknowledge the source. It was the standing army and navy of the country—consisting of idle, robust, vigorous, well-fed young men—that were the curse of society, and which were, in a great degree, the cause of prostitution and its attendant diseases. He hoped that the time was coming when England would learn to imitate the example of America, who could do without a standing army, yet if it were needed could raise a body of men—especially in the North—with homes and wives, who would defend their country a great deal better than the idle, homeless soldiers."

Public opinion confirms this statement, and the Pall Mall Gazette published an account of the British army, written by a private soldier, which is further evidence to the same effect. He says:

"I have known several convicts and habitual jail-birds seeking refuge in the army. I have known many who were tried, in a few years more than six times, by court-martial for offences more or less disgraceful, and yet they were retained. I know many at present who are not clear six weeks in a year from punishment, and who are in a standing disgrace to any body of community, and they are allowed to remain. Col. HARDINGE, of the Coldstream Guards, a week or two ago, in a letter to the TIMES, complained bitterly of the limited discretion placed within his sagis for dealing with ill-conducted men. There is no earthly reason to show for their retention. Their misconduct entails an enormous expense upon the country, for they spend more time in prison than on duty, thereby necessitating the maintenance of a large staff of provost officials. Their presence in the barrack-room among young soldiers is like rank weeds among plants. They are constantly endeavoring, and with a cruel pleasure in corrupting the morals of those around them. Their ordinary language is a phraseology of obscenity, blasphemy, and profanity. They are always creating drunken brawls, and delight in annoying those who do not enter into their pursuits. The language used at meals is indescribably disgusting. I know some young men, simple and unsophisticated, from country districts, in the short course of three months, through the power of evil example, become confirmed scoundrels."

The Government is now endeavoring to reform the whole army system—and not too soon.

MONADNOCK.

ITALY.

The Minister's Financial Project—Troubles in the South—Italy and France—Pope Pius IX—The Council—Catholicism and Protestantism—St. Gennaro's Day—The Season.

From Our Own Correspondent.

FLORENCE, Tuesday, May 10, 1870.

The prospect seems to be pretty bright that this time something will come of the Minister's financial project. Deputies speak encouragingly, and the Special Commission in whose hands the scheme is are getting on well with their work. The chasm will be bridged over by an arrangement with the Bank, as an understanding has already been arrived at on the most essential points, the original plan being accepted with modifications.

TROUBLES IN THE SOUTH.

But yesterday there was a pause in the discussion in Parliament of the Budget, to listen to an account given by the chief of the Cabinet, of the somewhat serious movements in a Republican sense made within a few days in the province of Catanzaro, in the extreme southern part of the kingdom; a region more famous for brigandage than for political demonstrations. A band of two or three hundred, with arms and a half military organization, suddenly appeared with cries for the Republic, and proclamations of doctrines in opposition to existing rule. The authorities had no difficulty in putting an end to the irregular proceedings, although some of the Police had been seized and held as prisoners. Orderly citizens came forward in large numbers and offered their services to the Government as volunteers, in case of need; and a son of GARIBALDI—MENOTTI—now in that part, promised his aid in suppressing the movement, if it should assume the dimensions of an insurrection. The Minister was able to assure Parliament that no anxiety is felt by the Government on account of such attempts, as it has at command ample means of repression. For the rest, the present Ministry finds fewer difficulties in its way than the Cabinets of the past three or four years, which have made not very successful trials of the exercise of power. Factions in Parliament seem less inclined to embarrass the action of the chief agents of the Sovereign, which is a great gain, as the bad example set by ambitious leaders of party was too apt to find imitators among less responsible actors in the square. Signor LANZA, the present head of the Ministry, is one from the ranks of the people, efficient as a Counsellor, and as energetic in action as ready in speech.

ITALY AND FRANCE.

The great political strife and pressure in France has kept the Italians as much occupied the past week as if it were their own particular affair. There is such a solidarity of interests of various sorts between the people of the two countries, that what affects one is pretty sure soon to be felt by the other. Italy leans as much on France as England does upon the United States. This great cry for liberty in Europe is giving people intrusted with political responsibilities a good deal of anxiety, in spite of the poh, poh, of those actually exercising power. If it should go wrong with the Empire in France, the reaction would immediately be felt here, and nobody is able to say positively whether liberty would gain or lose. In fact, the political theatre has come to be a gaming-house, or exchange, and the bulls and the bears of the old and the new systems are expecting to make their fortunes by a revolution of the wheel. Luck has come to so many adventurers that the last man arrived is equally hopeful of his chance. So far as the advocates of radical changes are concerned, the recent turn of events, both in Italy and France, has not been such as to kindle new ardor, and some are cutting down into the conclusion that it will be better to try to effect reforms with means already in hand, than to strive for the application of new processes.

POPE PIUS IX.

On the 15th of next month, Pius IX. will enter the five and twentieth year of his Pontificate. If his life is prolonged to the end of that year, it will be a negation of the celebrated position Non celebris annus Petri, referring to the fact that no Pope has held the Chair of Peter so long as did St. Peter himself, whose term was prolonged to twenty-five years, two months, and seven days. It has been suggested here that if Pius IX. gets beyond this, he must be prepared for a new sensation, for the fanatics among the Ultramontanes will propose to make a saint of him before life is extinct. EGO NOMO, without knowing it, or intending it, is by the work of his Council giving satisfaction both to friends and foes. Indeed, my free-thinking Italian is so well content with the Pope's work that he goes so far as to say that if PIUS IX. will keep on as he has been he will canonize him in his own oratory, and adopt him as his saint.

THE COUNCIL.

It is now confidently asserted by clerical witnesses, that the Pope's Council will not be broken up after the infallibility scheme is voted. There is much work left for it to do, and there will be a Summer vacation, but not an indefinite adjournment. Priests tell us that it may be prolonged for years, for the circumstances of the time will, quite as much as any influences from above, fix the decision as concerns its continuance.

CATHOLICISM AND PROTESTANTISM.

It is constantly asserted by the undiscouraged friends of the Papacy that what the Roman Catholic Church is losing in Europe is more than made up by the acquisitions in America. To all except well-instructed Italians, the name America, however familiar, is still a vague term. Instead of associating it, as do Northern Europeans, with the great country whose chief rules over a population of forty or fifty millions, when the name is mentioned there comes up in the mind the recollection of some little republic of South America, to which first and last one or two hundred thousand Italians have emigrated, among whom the one who addresses you may have an acquaintance of former years. The moment is near when the census of the eighth decade of the United States is to be taken, and it will be of service to statisticians, who watch the relative development of Protestantism and Catholicism in the world, if the figures are given with sufficient precision to furnish a trustworthy argument in the mighty interesting discussion which is going on. That the United States has become in population and in influence the leading Protestant country of the world, is hardly recognized by those in Europe, who give authority to opinion; but the fact must be put conspicuously forward by the results of the approximate general enumeration. The transfer of the base from Europe to America of Protestant propagandism has been sudden, and it cannot be long before America will put Europe in the minority in the great aggregate.

ST. GENNARO'S DAY.

I see by a statement in the Union Cattolica, the organ and faithful chronicler of every ecclesiastical event, that the Neapolitans have had their annual treat of a dance round the flask containing the blood of St. Gennaro, their patron saint. We have the same authority for the fact that this ancient red liquid fluttered up nicely, and quite to the satisfaction of those who lay great stress upon the success of this annual miracle. As is very well known, all the word of command, after mass is said before a great crowd in the church where it is kept, the blood, which has been in solid state during the year, suddenly liquefies, and fairly boils like that of a "riled" Democratic politician, disappointed in his "legitimate aspirations."

THE SEASON.

As the season is ended at Rome, this capital City of Florence is more lively than usual with visitors, lingering on their way to the North. The inns, which are numerous and large, are running over with guests, and hosteles are having so profitable a time of it as almost to think themselves the masters, and not the servants, of the traveling public, or, in other phrase, the dupesers, and not the recipients, of benefits. Our Consul-General, Mr. JAMES LORIMER GRAHAM, Jr., is dispensing his hospitalities to his countrymen on a scale to shower half a dozen salaries such as are paid to our foreign agents in similar offices. From the time this central seat of our consular system in Italy was created, the incumbent has been a rich man, and the stipend has been by no means the first object.

ANGELICO.

SPAIN.

Rupture in the Republican Party—Late Proceedings in the Cortes—The Independence of Cuba—The Cuops.

From Our Own Correspondent.

MADRID, Thursday, May 12, 1870.

My task as a faithful chronicler imposes upon me today the painful duty of announcing a rupture in the Republican Party. It may lead to the most unhappy consequences now that the Monarchists are uniting for the solution of the subject of article 33 of the Constitution. I have informed you that the Republican Party nominated a Directory composed of tried men, most esteemed for their sentiments, their convictions and their capacity. You know, also, that the party had proceeded to its re-organization in Madrid, and in all the provinces. It has come to pass now that a few individuals yielding to the evil counsels of their own vanity, have protested against the nomination of certain members of the Directory, and against the Federal system as laid out by them. Today, a part (the majority) have protested against the manifest due to the pen of M. CASTELAR. Three Republican journals alone, throughout Spain, sustain the Federal system. The others call themselves Confederates, that is to say, opposed to all transaction. The Directory has seen with pain that Messrs. PI-MARGALL, FUTAS, and the Marquis DE SANTA MARTHA, have signed the manifest of the fraction of the Confederates, and are about to publish an appeal to the party to request it to reject the system of the Confederates, which is the negation of that of the Federals. The declarations of the Confederates deny the principle of nationalities, in order to admit the consequences of the "social contract" of J. J. ROUSSEAU. According to them, the follies invented by the ideologues from PLATO up to our own day, ought to give place to the practical and wise ideal which prevail in the United States of America. Messrs. Castelar, Figueras, Garcia Lopez, Maisonave, Sorni, and other Republican orators reject energetically this tendency of the shires of the Republican Party. The juntas of Madrid and of different provinces have adjured the members of the Directory to protest with all their might against the manifest of the seven Republican journals of Madrid. A meeting was held yesterday, to try to find a means of reconciling all these exigencies. It was impossible, however, to come to an understanding. The members of the Directory maintained the system of federation applied to the present condition of the country. The dissenting Republicans maintained that the confederation of the municipalities, the districts, the provinces and the parts of which some of the provinces are composed should prevail. For these latter, there is nothing acceptable but the federalism of PROUDHON from which they admit no safety attainable. It is to be feared that the two parties are entering upon a period in which principles will be in contest. The plan of the federation was at first accepted and sustained by the entire Republican Press of Madrid and the Provinces, but Messrs. PI-MARGALL, FUTAS, and the Marquis DE SANTA MARTHA separated themselves and flung out the flag of the Confederates. I will keep you informed as to the result of the meetings which will take place, and I will send in extenso the new manifest which M. CASTELAR is now preparing. If a reconciliation is not effected, it will be published day after to-morrow.

THE CORTES.

This is the fifteenth day of the discussion of the question of civil marriages by the Cortes. All the orators, great and small, of the Legislative Body have taken part in the debate, which will continue some days longer. The organic law on the municipalities has been put in discussion. It secures the most complete liberty for the administrative acts of the Mayors and their counselors. The reactionaries of the Union-Liberal Party do not wish to deprive the central power of the right of dissolving the municipalities. The Minister of the Interior, and the Commission charged with defending the new project, sustain the inamovability of the municipalities, which can only be changed by their own will, and not by that of the Prefects, or the Minister. If this innovation in Spain prevails, we shall grant at last the era in which municipal life really exists, for the cities will have their liberty of action freed from the pressure of a central Government, as in England and in the United States. Today M. CASTELAR will speak in the Cortes in favor of the independence of the cities, so violently disputed by the adversaries of the revolution. Since the declaration of Gen. PRIM to the Cortes the diverse fractions of the Chamber hold separate meetings to discuss the merits and chances of the several candidates for the throne. There are such great differences among the Monarchists that it has been as yet impossible for them to agree, and you may take it for granted that all the chances are in favor of a continuation of the Provisional Government, with the single modification that the present Regent (if he is not replaced by PRIM) will be invested with monarchical privileges. It will be a great misfortune for Spain if the Cortes separate without coming to a decision. The door will remain open to all sorts of eventualities, even to the most dangerous, for all parties are extremely hostile to each other. There exists all the time in Spain the ostensible policy destined to tranquilize foreign Courts and the country at large, but the secret policy, that of the Cabinets of the Ministers and of the Legislative Palace, often destroys the engagements publicly taken before the Cortes. The present case is not an exception. Disorders are heard of in the Provinces, but they are not so serious as those previously reported. Carlists and Republicans exchange pistol shots occasionally.

THE CROPS.

Here is a piece of intelligence perfectly reliable, and of great interest for the whole United States. In Spain this year's crop of wheat, grain, tobacco, figs, and especially of Malaga grapes, is greater than has been known for years.

CUBAN AFFAIRS.

ARRIVAL OF THE HAVANA STEAMSHIP COLUMBIA.

The Case of Boze—A New Trick—Trial of the Cuban Government—A Woman in Trouble—War News.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Saturday, May 28, 1870.

CARLOS GONZALES BOZE, the famous leader of VALMASEDA's counter guerillas, better known as VALMASEDA's executioner, and so cordially hated by the Cubans at Santiago de Cuba, owing to his execution of many citizens of that place, had arrived at Matanzas, where he had been married. The officers of volunteers and a number of citizens went to receive him at the railroad depot and crowds lined the sidewalk. The cause of BOZE's leaving the scenes of his exploits is not ill-health, but only an accusation of stealing a sum of $8,000, which, it is alleged, he took from the body of some person he executed, and which amount he failed to deliver to the proper authorities. This is the charge, and BOZE will be tried by Court-martial. Whether the charge is well founded the proceedings of the trial may probably tell.

NEW WRECK.

The Gaceta publishes an account of a hunt near Sagua, announcing that the rangers had brought the malefactor, MATIAS DE MARERO, as a prisoner to Encrucijada, and also the care of the negro VICTORIANO, whom they killed, nine others escaping. The proof of having killed the man must be taken as conclusive evidence of the fact, though a malicious Havana Cuban insinuates that these ears may have been cut from the head of a live negro.

TRIAL OF THE CUBAN GOVERNMENT.

The Gaceta publishes the second and last appeal of the Military Court, of which Col. FRANCISCO MONTAGO is the Judge-Advocate, calling on the following-named persons, constituting a part of the Cuban Government Junta in New-York, to appear for trial in this city within twenty days, and be confined, temporarily, in jail. The persons named are:

"Cárlos Manuel Céspedes, Francisco Vicente Aguilera, Cristóbal Mendoza, Eliseo Izaguirre, Eluateio Agramonte, Miguel de Aldama, Thomas Jordan, Salvador Cisneros Betancourt, Francisco Sanchez Betancourt, Miguel Betancourt Guerra, Jesus Rodriguez, Antonio Alcalá, José Izaguirre, Honorato Castillo, Miguel Geronimo Gutierrez, Aristide Garcia, Tranquilino Valdés, Antonio Lorda, Antonio Machado, Antonio Zambrana, Ignacio Agramonte, José Morales Lemus, Francisco Vicente Aguero, Rus Vallente, José Mora, Antonio Fernandez Bramosio, Dr. Bassora, Francisco Izquierdo, Plutarco Gonzales, Fernandez Criado, Javier Cisneros, Joaquin Delgado, Ramon Aguirrea, Francisco Feser, Mariano Alvarez, Ignacio Alfaro, Miguel Aldama, Carlos del Castillo, José Manuel Mestre, Hilario Cisneros, Leonardo del Monte, José Maria Céspedes, Francisco Valdés Mendoza, Nestor Ponce de Leon, Federico Falvez, Francisco Javier Valmaseda, José Trujillo, Manuel Casanova, Antonio Mora, Luis F. Mantilla and Manuel Marquez.

Should they fail to appear they will be sentenced as rebels. This sentence may be forescen, as being the only one meted out to enemies of the Spanish Government in Cuba. But as all these gentlemen are either quietly in New-York or else fighting in the field, the trial will be a mere farce, and the truly loyal will be cheated out of a spectacle à la garrote.

A CONSUL IN TROUBLE.

This morning's Gaceta calls on Mr. JULIO E. KICHEREN, the Vice-Consul of Holland, and whom it states to be absent from this city, to appear at the Prison of Fort Principe and give testimony regarding his complicity in the trial of Mr. ALFRED LEVY, of Sagua, a young Englishman, on the charge of treason. Mr. LEVY was book-keeper of Messrs. MORE & ARUMA at Sagua, and was arrested some three months ago, owing to the discovery of some correspondence. But there is something strange about the edict against Mr. KICHEREN, as that gentleman is not absent from this city, and still continues in his former employment as book-keeper of FRASER & Co. Although he is a Consul, he may consider himself what the Germans call vogelfrei, after the publication of this edict.

THE HAVANA PRESS.

"Our principles must be sustained," has long been the repeatedly expressed assertion of Mr. GIL GELPI, chief editor of the Prensa, which journal is about to disappear from the field of Cuban newspaperdom. How and in what manner may be seen from the following very characteristic card of GELPI, as published in the Prensa of Sunday morning:

"Under the necessity of reconcentrating strength and labor with a unity of ideas, this journal will cease to appear, its present director and editor remaining as vice-director and first editor of the Voz de Cuba, at the head of which paper Mr. RUIZ DE LEON will be placed as director. The subscribers of the Prensa, of whom we take our leave, will gain by the change, as, in addition to our work, they will have that of our director, whose vast knowledge and intense patriotism are well known. But our readers will take care to remember that the Voz de Cuba, under the direction of Mr. RUIZ DE LEON, must be considered a new journal."

To a foreigner or person unacquainted with Cuban affairs and politics, the suspension of a newspaper and other details would undoubtedly appear to be a matter of very small interest. But exactly the reverse is the case, and the suspension of the Press and union with the Voz de Cuba are matters of transcendental importance, and furnish a very significant fact not only of the actual state of the situation, but also of the political sentiments and relations of the Havana Spaniards, or, rather, all the Spaniards residing in Cuba, among themselves and toward the mother country. In order to demonstrate this more fully, a slight sketch of Messrs. GELPI and LEON will be needed. GELPI is a man of great information, especially on American affairs, but not a scholar; he is a retired sea captain of a studious turn of mind. In politics, a defender of the Pope, of absolutism in every shape, and Spain. Full of self-importance and a high opinion of his influence, he nevertheless is a gentleman in his writings and social intercourse, and a generous enemy. He has been ridiculed, but his great persistence has made him a strong power in the Spanish element. Financially considered, the Prensa proved a failure under his management, and only the sale of the paper to the Voz de Cuba has enabled him to pay house-rent and other debts. His future director, companion or adjutant, it being impossible to tell which, Mr. RUIZ DE LEON, is a fair scribbler, but not a notability. Reported violent in his temper, and certainly so in his writings, more scholarly but less profound than GELPI, he managed to form a small party composed of the adherents of ISABELLA at the present day. He edited the Diario once, and was the New-York correspondent of said journal last year, acting also as agent of the Spanish Government. The Voz de Cuba, therefore, which under CARTAHOW was liberal, under the present management liberal conservador, will, under the new régime, be the mouth-piece of the Church and Bourbon party, perhaps quietly, like the Diario, or pronounceedly, like the Pensamiento Español, in Madrid. The only bona fide journalist on the Voz, Mr. TRIAY, will be compelled to take a secondary position, and liberal ideas will no longer have an organ or defender in Cuba. The Voz de Cuba, notwithstanding Mr. GELPI'S assertion that under the new régime it must be considered as a new paper, will in reality be the old Prensa. Men of GELPI'S stamp are sufficiently marked and powerful to impress themselves and their ideas on everything surrounding them, and although it is barely possible that GELPI and LEON may manage to work together peaceably more than a couple of months, the Voz, nevertheless, will be more absolutist than Bourbonist. If CASTAÑOS could rise from his tomb and see the Voz de Cuba, with the names of GELPI and LEON, he would ask to return to his eternal home, never to appear again. It is, therefore, a certain conclusion that the liberal portion of the Cuban Spaniards have been overawed and cowed by their nitro brethren; the clergy and stockholders, who hold the money, have gained the victory, and only very nitro-Spanish views and articles must be expected in future. A Spanish republic or liberal advanced measures have but few, if any, adherents among the Cuban Spaniards, and those who exist dare not acknowledge themselves as such. Vox of CASTAÑOS, requiescat in pace!

WAR NEWS.

No event of any moment has taken place since my last, insignificant skirmishes of no importance being the order of the day. Some Cuban reports, of which no confirmation has been received, are in circulation, of which the most important is to the effect that the troops which were surrounding MODESTA DIAZ had found a hornet's nest, meeting a much larger force than they bargained for, and that they had been driven back three leagues and badly whipped, with severe losses. QUASIMODO.

CHICAGO.

The North-western Women's Suffrage Convention—Railroad Matters—Transportation of Grain—The Fall Political Campaign—Business

all over the West. There are fears, however, that the good results expected will be counteracted by the cupidity and exactions of the railroads west of the shipping ports, and that the producers will not reap the benefits of the change.

SABBATH CLOSING.

Chicago experienced a new sensation last Sunday. In accordance with the order of the Police Commissioners, nearly all of the saloons kept their front doors closed and their blinds down. There was a show of decency and of observing the laws, at least. And from some cause or other—this or something else—the cases of "drunks and disorderlies" before the Police Courts on Monday morning were not half of what they were the previous Monday, and what they have been for months. There are many Sunday drinkers who do not care to be seen sneaking into back doors, through dirty alleys, and then the very fact that official and public notice has been taken of the violation of law by the saloons has a decided influence upon the popular mind. The Superintendent of Police has directed that the order shall be strictly enforced.

IMMIGRATION.

There is a large influx of foreigners from all nations, almost, this Spring. The Irish and Germans predominate, of course, but the "Norsemen" are pretty strongly represented. These push on to the fat lands beyond us, and mostly engage in agriculture. Minnesota has great attractions, and when the Northern Pacific Railroad is completed, we may expect to see Scandinavia reproduced along its line to the base of the Rocky Mountains.

SOCIAL SCIENCE.

We are soon to have the assembled wisdom of the country in full discussion upon the social science questions which are agitating a few minds among us. The National Convention is to be held in this city during the second week in June. The programme contains a list of important subjects, and they have been assigned mainly to able men.

CROPS.

Crop prospects continue fine. Favorable reports come to us from every quarter, with now and then a plaint that there is a lack of rain; but during the past week abundant showers have fallen over a large section of the West. Judging from the abundance of strawberries in the market and their superior quality, there is to be no lack of fruit this season. In fact, the reports are good from all the fruit-growing "belts."

TENNESSEE RAILROAD BONDS.

From the Nashville Union, June 1.

Senator COOPER, of Bedford, introduced yesterday, from the joint Judiciary Committee, two very important bills, accompanied by reports explanatory of the causes which prompted the introduction of those bills. The object of one of those bills is to prevent the payment by the Controller or Treasurer of any bonds of the State, issued to the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad, and to prevent the payment, or reception in payment, of State indebtedness of an yet the coupons belonging to these bonds. The other bill is introduced to accomplish the same purpose with reference to 100 bonds, with coupons, issued to the Mineral Home Railroad.

THE TENNESSEE AND PACIFIC RAILROAD.

In relation to the bonds issued to the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad, the Committee declare that:

The eight hundred and eighty-five bonds issued by the Governor of the State of Tennessee to GEORGE MAHEY, in aid of the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad Company, on the 2d day of October, 1869; on the 20th day of October, 1869; on the 27th day of October, 1869, and on the 11th day of December, 1869, were illegally issued, and prohibiting the Controller of the Treasury and the Treasurer of the State from voluntarily paying said bonds, or the coupons clipped from them, or from receiving them in payment of any debt due and owing the State of Tennessee, in any way.

The Committee have carefully examined all of the statutes relative to the subject of internal improvement, and granting aid to railroad companies organized under them, as well as the act of Dec. 7, 1867, entitled an "Act act to amend the Internal Improvement laws of the State, passed Feb. 11, 1869," under which the Executive Department informs us the bonds were issued to the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad Company, with an earnest desire to ascertain, if possible, the authority under which the Executive Department acted in issuing the large number of bonds to the President of said road. They are compelled, however, by a sense of their responsibility as legislators, and their duty to their constituents, the people of the State, to say to the President of the road, and the examination which they have given to the statutes, the bonds so issued were illegally issued, without any authority of law, in direct conflict with the express provisions of the act under which the additional aid was granted to the Railroad Company.

The Committee say that the sixth section of the act of December, 1867, there was granted to the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad Company "the additional sum of $5,000 per mile, subjecting the Company to the liabilities and restrictions imposed by the Internal Improvement act of February, 1852," and by the sixteenth section of the same act it was provided "that these loans shall be made in a like manner and under the same conditions imposed by the Internal Improvement laws of the State."

The Committee find that the Governor of the State, on the demand of GEORGE MAHEY, caused to be issued to him as President of the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad Company, the bonds of $1,000 each in aid of said road, being $5,000 per mile on the entire road of said Company from Nashville to Knoxville; they find that at the times when said bonds were so issued it was not satisfactorily shown to the Governor by any evidence known to the Committee that the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad Company had procured bona fide and good and solvent subscriptions of capital stock to an amount sufficient to grade, bridge and prepare for the iron rails the whole extent of the main trunk line proposed to be constructed by such Company, and that they had, in fact, at the time graded, bridged and fully prepared thirty miles of the road at either terminus.

They find that beyond the town of Lebanon, a distance of about thirty miles from Nashville, along said road, there was not one foot of said road graded, and that beyond the town of Carthage, a distance of some sixty miles from Nashville, the line of said Railroad Company was not, at the time, even permanently located.

They find that under the General Internal Improvement laws of the State, and by the express provisions of the act of Dec. 2, 1867, granting the additional aid of $5,000 per mile to the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad Company, the evidence would have been produced to the Governor by the evidence of the President, GEORGE MAHEY, under oath, satisfying him that the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad Company, at the time, had thirty miles of the line of said railroad, at one or the other of its termini, graded, bridged and fully prepared to receive the iron rails; and also bona fide, good and sufficient subscriptions of capital stock, in an amount sufficient to grade, bridge and prepare for the iron rails the whole extent of the main trunk line proposed to be constructed, and that, upon such evidence and proof made by affidavit by the President, bonds in the extent of $10,000 per mile for the first thirty miles, and $16,000 for bridges across certain rivers, and so on each additional section of ten miles might be issued, and the act of Dec. 7, 1867, only gave additional aid of $5,000 per mile, but subject to the same conditions and restrictions as attached to the $10,000 per mile.

Under the facts shown by the Special Committee on Railroads in their report, and the evidence accompanying it, the Judiciary Committee conclude that the bonds were illegally issued, without authority of law, and in direct conflict with its express provisions; hence, that a law should at once be introduced and passed, prohibiting the Controller and Treasurer from voluntarily paying the same.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

COOPER, of Bedford, Chairman.

THE MINERAL HOME RAILROAD.

Relative to the bonds issued to the Mineral Home Railroad, the Committee, after appropriate introductory remarks, say:

The one hundred bonds issued by the Governor in aid of said road on the 2d day of October, 1869, were caused to be illegally and fraudulently issued, having been proved by means of an affidavit made by the State Directors, known to be by them at the time they made it untrue in every particular; and that the subsequent sale of them by the parties assuming to control them, and their agent, the Exchange and Deposit Bank of Knoxville, at forty-three cents on the dollar, was a void sale, the purchaser obtaining no valid title to said bonds, because made in direct violation of the law under which the bonds were issued; and obtaining no valid title, they could subsequently communicate no title to others claiming by, through or under them.

The Committee recommend the passage of the bill, because, in their opinion, under the facts shown by the report of the Select Committee on Railroads, the bonds were obtained by the managers of the Mineral Home Railroad upon a predetermined intention of swindling the State of Tennessee out of $100,000, which they have attempted to consummate, by subornation of perjury, and that the representatives of the people would be guilty of a gross dereliction of duty if they to not, by all legal means, endeavor to protect the taxpayers of the State from the loss because of such illegal and fraudulent proceedings.

The Committee are of the opinion, and so report, that the State of Tennessee, having now, for the first time, through its legislative department, discovered and exposed the fraud by which the wrong was perpetrated, have the legal right to cancel and disaffirm, within a reasonable time, the contract so made, and especially can the State of Tennessee be protected by legislative acts, as against having the bonds to pay. In the opinion of the Committee, the purchasers of said bonds can, in no sense, be considered bona fide purchasers who purchased them from the original parties to whom said bonds were issued, or from their agents at less than par, because under the law, which all are presumed to know, there was attached to their sale the express condition that they should not be disposed of at less than par.

The Committee feel that in the passage of the bill, as recommended, no wrong can be done to any, but a great good will result to the people of the State. Here not the expression of a legislative opinion; our action is not executive. A party feeling dissatisfied with our decisions can resort to the Courts, and as it is a legal question, we wish to protect the State against a voluntary payment by its officers and agents.

The Committee also report a resolution making it the duty of the District-Attorney to institute in the name of the State all of the proceedings engaged in this gross attempt to swindle and defraud the State.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

COOPER, of Bedford, Chairman.

Fatal Accidents on the Flushing Railroad.

Yesterday morning the Flushing Railroad dispatched its sixth victim this security. The Flushing and Long Island Railroad train left Hunter's Point at 10½ A. M., and enjoyed a little race as far as Winfield, where the locomotive of the Flushing train ran over an unknown young man, while he was attempting to cross the track to the Long Island Station. The train was running very fast. The person who was killed has not yet been identified. He was terribly lacerated and his limbs broken. He had in his possession a leather bag filled with samples of dry goods from the house of GRIFFIN, GIBBONS & CARPENTER, No. 46 Frankfort-street, this City. Coroner SIMMS will hold an inquest today.

Fenian Schemes in England—Precautions Against Violence—The Editor of French—Marine Disasters.

LONDON, June 3.—The alleged Fenians, DAVITT and WILSON, were again brought up for examination today. Some of the evidence is important, going to show that the prisoners have been actively engaged for some time past in distributing arms in Ireland and the north of England. The Government continues its precautions against Fenian violence. There is still some apprehension in regard to the movements of the Fenians. The Government has received private information concerning their plan of operations. As a consequence, orders have been issued from the Admiralty Office to double the guards at all dock-yards and naval stations in Great Britain, to keep the fires banked on all steamers, and other precautions calculated to facilitate the suppression of any revolt....Mr. SHIRLEY BROOKS succeeds the late MARK LEMON as active editor of the London Punch....Mrs. JOHN WOOD, the American actress, acknowledges the receipt of an anonymous gift of diamonds and emeralds, amounting in value to £700....Americans in London are excessively annoyed by the slow and uncertain delivery of their letter and newspaper mails from home.....A material reduction has been made in the tolls on cable messages between England and India via Gibraltar and Malta....The Madawa, for Quebec, in ballast, is ashore on the Cornish coast. The Fourth Day at Epsom—The "Oaks" Another Surprise—Yachting—The Doverton Cup.

LONDON, June 3.—Today was the fourth day of the Epsom races. The interest centered in the race for the Oaks Stakes of 50 sovereigns each, the owner of the second horse to receive 300 sovereigns and the third 150 sovereigns, which closed with 128 subscribers. The betting was about as follows: Five to four against Mr. JOSEPH DAWSON'S Hester, by Thormanby, out of Tomyris; three to one against Mr. MERRYS' b. f. Sunshine, and five to one against Mr. S. REEVE'S br. f. Paid, by Macaroni, out of Sonpstress. The race was a very fine one and sharply contested. The weather was very fine, and a great crowd was present. The favorites for the first place were beaten, and much money consequently changed hands. Six horses started. The race was won by Gemos by three lengths. The following is the summary:

Mr. G. Jones' ch. f. Gemos, by Saunterer out of Bess Lyons.....1
Mr. Merry's Sunshine.....2
Mr. S. Reeves' b. f. Paid, by Macaroni out of Sonpstress.....3

At the start the betting became even on Hester, and four to one against Sunshine....The Government promises to take strong measures against betting at races.

Two citizens were killed and eight wounded; and many arrests have been made.] The city is now quiet. THE INDIANS.

Red Cloud and Spotted Tail at the Indian Office—A Preliminary "Talk"—Red Cloud Makes a Complaint, and Declines to be Photographed.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The much-talked-of interview of the great Chief of the Sioux with the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, was hurried somewhat by RED CLOUD'S own request for an interview. This morning, SPOTTED TAIL, the Brule Sioux Chief, as well as the twenty other head men and several squaws of RED CLOUD'S party, were present. Gen. PARKER opened the talk in the usual vein of "This is a great country, as you will plainly see when you take a look at our arsenals, navy-yards, &c., which my aids will show you to-morrow," &c., and then introduced the honorable Secretary of the Interior, who continued the pow-wow with the much kindlier suggestions that the interview had been brought about to promote peace, and that we might have a better understanding with each other by talking face to face. The point of the interview, however, was in RED CLOUD'S own remarks, which were as few, direct, and full of meaning as those of Gen. GRANT himself. After the talk of the white man, which had lasted over a quarter of an hour, was over, RED CLOUD, upon being asked if he had anything to say, arose from his sitting posture and gathering his blanket around him with a quick nervous action, stepped forward, and shaking the hand of Gen. PARKER and Secretary COX, said with the usual Indian salutation:

"How! By your invitation I have come a great distance to meet you. I have been here two days, and as none of you great chiefs have called upon me, I have come to see you. My people at home, our women and children, are sick and starving. They want food. Please send them bread, or, as there are plenty of buffalo on the Plains, let us have guns and ammunition, and we will provide for ourselves. Please send a telegram to my people that we have arrived here safe and well."

With this he stopped, and in the same quick and nervous manner with which he had come forward, he retired to his seat, followed by a general expression of approbation from all his companions. After he was seated, both Gen. PARKER and the Secretary of the Interior made explanations that they had a great many things to attend to; and though they did not say so, this was probably intended to excuse the breach of etiquette in their failure to call upon RED CLOUD on his arrival.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Both delegations of the SIOUX Indians came together to the Indian Office this morning, where they had a preparatory council with the Secretary of the Interior and Commissioner PARKER. Long before the arrival of the Indians the passages of the Department were filled by a crowd anxious to inspect the red men as they passed it by, and this, besides being unpleasant to them, interfered very much with their comfort, making it somewhat difficult for them to make their way into the Council Chamber. After a while, however, they were all admitted and seated, SPOTTED TAIL looking the personification of dignity, being, with his three companions, on one side of the room, while seated in two rows at right angles from him, were RED CLOUD and his larger number of chiefs, and the head men, together with the squaws who accompany them. There were also present Gen. SMITH, who accompanied the Red Cloud party hither; Col. BRANNAN, of St. Louis; Col. BULLOCK, of Fort Laramie; JOHN RICHARDS, VINCENT COLLYER and others. After the Indians were comfortably seated and had passed the pipe around their circle a few times, Commissioner PARKER, accompanied by Secretary COX, entered the council-room and were introduced to each Indian of RED CLOUD'S band, having met the Spotted Tail party previously.

COMMISSIONER PARKER'S SPEECH.

After that ceremony the speeches of the occasion were made, the first being by the Commissioner, who said:

"I am very glad to see you today. I know that you have come a long way to see your Great Father, the President of the United States. You have had no accident, have arrived here all well, and should be very thankful to the Great Spirit, who has kept you safe. The Great Father got RED CLOUD'S message that he wanted to come to Washington and see him, and the President said he might come. We will be ready at any time to hear what RED CLOUD has to say for himself and his people, but want him first to hear the Secretary of the Interior, who belongs to the President's Council."

SPEECH OF MR. COX.

The Commissioner then stepped aside, and Secretary COX addressed the circle, saying:

"When we heard that the Chief of the Sioux nation wanted to come to Washington to see the President and the officers of the Government, we were glad. We were glad that they themselves said they wanted to come. We know that when people are so far apart as we are from the Sioux, it is very hard to see each other and to know what each other's own wants. But when we see each other face to face we can understand better what is really right and what we ought to do. The President, Gen. PARKER and myself, and all the officers of the Government, want to do the thing that is right. While you are here, therefore, we shall want you to tell us what is in your own hearts—what all your feelings and what your condition is, so that we may have a perfect understanding, and that we may make a peace that shall last forever. In coming here you have seen that this is a very great people, and we are growing all the time. We want to find out the condition of things in the Sioux country, so that we may make satisfactory treaties. In a day or two the President himself will see the chiefs, and in the meantime we want them to prepare to tell him what they have to say, and we will make our answer honestly as we mean. We want also to use our influence so that there shall not only be peace between the Indians and whites, but so there shall be no more troubles about difficulties between different bands of Indians."

The Secretary, at the conclusion of his speech to RED CLOUD and party, addressed himself to SPOTTED TAIL, thanking him for being present, and telling him he was glad of the good will he had for the whites.

RED CLOUD SPEAKS.

It was thought at the conclusion of these speeches that the conference would terminate. RED CLOUD announced through his interpreter that he had something to say, and stepping briskly to the table he shook hands with the officials present, and in a firm voice spoke as follows:

MY FRIENDS: I have come a long way to see you and the Great Father, but somehow after I have reached here you do not look at me. When I heard the words of the Great Father permitting me to come, I came right away and left my women and children. I want you to give them rations and a load of ammunition to kill game with. I wish you would telegraph to my people about it. Tell them I arrived all right.

THE REPLY.

After making these remarks he walked quickly back and took his seat among the warriors. Secretary COX said that for the present he would simply say "We welcome them again." He thought it would gratify them to come here today, and we desire to show them every respect and kindness. We will telegraph to RED CLOUD'S people that they are here safe, and as to their other requests will give them most careful attention. The Commissioner told them that to-morrow he would show them the points of interest in and around the city. On the next day the white people did no business, and on the evening of the next day the President would meet the Indians at the Executive Mansion. He has a great many people to attend to, and has not been to see them, but asked them to come and see him. On this occasion he wants to see them, to shake hands, and after that will see them on business. The talk then ended, and the Indians all shook hands around once more and left. They were invited to have their photographs taken, but RED CLOUD declined for the present.

A VISIT TO THE CAPITOL.

RED CLOUD and SPOTTED TAIL, with the other Indians of their respective parties, visited the Capitol this afternoon, and were conducted to the dome, where they had a clear view of the city and surrounding country. They then visited the marble room of the Senate, the articles there most admired by them being the large mirrors, and the marble busts of two Indian chiefs. The Indians entered the Senate gallery while the Indian Appropriation bill was under consideration. They were all in full costume, and fanned themselves without cessation while watching the proceedings of the legislators. The interpreter explained to them the business was with reference to their welfare, but they made no response. When they left the Capitol they strolled through the grounds and then returned to their hotel.

The Disposition of the Indians of the Upper Missouri—A Dispatch from Gen. Hancock.

CHICAGO, June 3.—The following dispatch was received this morning at Military Headquarters:

SIOUX CITY, June 2.

To the Assistant Adjutant-General, Head-quarters Military Division of Missouri:

I have just returned to this point. I went to the Cheyenne Agency above Fort Sully, and had a conversation with the Indians. Troops have been placed at the Old Tongue, Whetstone Creek, Cheyenne and Grand River Agencies. I have visited all except the latter. Gen. STANLEY was there a few days since. Everything was quiet. I have ordered two companies to the Lower Brule Agency, eighteen miles below the Crow Creek Agency, on application of the agent there, who informed me that he could not continue his business operations unless troops were placed there. Everything seems quiet, but the future is considered uncertain along the river. At Cheyenne, Major RANDALL'S agency, the only place where I talked with the Indians, I observed they made no promises for the future, and none of them there, as well as at other places, complained of the troops being placed on their reservations. They understand, however, why it was done, and seem to admit the justice of it. My impression is that we shall have trouble with them on the Missouri River of any general nature if the Government continues its policy of feeding them; otherwise I have no doubt there will be serious trouble. They will be likely to make trouble elsewhere, however, as they can only trade on the Missouri. I request authority to advertise a reward of $10,000 each in horses for the murderers of the family on the Nebraska River. I believe we may thus capture them, and at least produce the effect of deterring others from committing like crimes for fear of being arrested through like rewards. I leave by the first train for St. Paul.

(Signed,) W. S. HANCOCK,
Major-General United States Army.

A RAILROAD SMASH.

Demolition of a Mixed Train on the Watertown and Rome Road—Narrow Escape of the Passengers.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., June 3.—A terrible smash-up occurred this afternoon on the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg Railroad, when the 2 o'clock freight train ran off the track a few miles from Cape Vincent. The accident was fortunately attended by no loss of human life, the escape of the engineer and fireman being a marvelous one. The wrecked train consisted of two passenger and seven freight cars, six of the latter being filled with cattle. The disaster was caused by expansion of the rails and the rotten condition of the ties where the wreck occurred. A few minutes before the train was smashed, a perceptible jar was felt by the passengers, and the Superintendent of the road, Mr. J. W. MOAR, who happened to be on board, seized the check-string, but failed to give any alarm, and while he stood thus irresolute, another portion of the track suddenly spread beneath the weight of the cattle cars, and sent the first half of the train tumbling to the right and left. The engineer, CHARLES J. GILLINGHAM, and the fireman W. S. DRYHOUSE, clung to the locomotive as it went plowing into the left bank. Both escaped death in a wonderful manner. The engineer received a slight cut in the forehead, and the fireman had both hands smashed. The conductor of the train, THOS. H. COOPER, immediately started for Chaumont, distant three miles from the scene of the wreck, and telegraphed to Watertown for assistance. During his absence the passengers went to work and extracted the cattle that were jammed in the débris by the use of axes and crowbars. The unfortunate brutes were nearly all turned into the fields. In due time a special train arrived from Watertown, and the passengers duly forwarded. Travel will be resumed to-morrow, as the wrecking train is already at work. The loss to the Company is $20,000.

THE PRESBYTERIANS.

New Trustees Elected—Mileage—The Report on Freedmen.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—In Presbyterian General Assembly this morning, the report of the Committee on proposed changes in the Board of Trustees of the Corporate General Assembly, reported that the six trustees elected in November last should be removed, and that six from the former New School branch should be put in their places. This was agreed to, and six gentlemen were elected. The Committee thought this course the one least open to objection, though the gentlemen removed are of the highest character and greatest usefulness. The Mileage Committee reported that there was a deficiency in that fund of $905, which, however, is $1,200 less than the deficiency last year. The assessment rate was fixed at six cents per capita for the ensuing year. The Enabling act was considered and passed, with an amendment directing Synods to designate by name the Presbytery in which succession of any disorganized Presbytery is to be continued. Consideration of the report on freedmen was resumed. A separate provisional Freedmen's Board of twelve members was constituted, which was located at Pittsburg. The report of the joint Committee on Publication was considered, and pending action on resolutions providing for the consolidation of the Board of Publication and the Publication Committee, the Assembly adjourned.

WASHINGTON.

The Ways and Means Committee's Pending Bill—Action of the House on the Income Tax—Government Expenses in May—Mr. Schenck's Tariff Amendment—The Roumania Massacre Before the Senate.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The deliberations of the Committee of Ways and Means have resulted in a finished Funding bill, though it is not yet given out. The Committee has been very reticent concerning its provisions, but to-night they have been learned. First, the loan is for one thousand millions consolidated stock; second, the bonds are a plain four per cent. thirty-year obligation, free from all national, State or municipal taxation, except as imposed upon income; third, deposits of gold in the Treasury, at three per cent. interest, are authorized, the proceeds of such deposits to be used in the redemption of five-twenties, beginning with the earliest issues, those of 1862. This is the length and breadth of the scheme. The proposition of Mr. BOUTWELL for foreign agencies is left out, and there isn't a word about banks in the bill. It is not known when the bill will be reported, and it is said that the Secretary of the Treasury does not like it, though he will, no doubt, accept it.

THE INCOME TAX.

The result on the income tax today is in exact accordance with the recommendations of the TIMES during the discussions of the past six months. Every one of the twenty-five amendments offered yesterday were voted on today, and when that work was done the tax stood as follows: Mr. COX'S amendment to reduce the rate to three per cent. was agreed to—yeas 115, nays 79; Mr. HALE'S amendment to increase the exemption to $2,000 was agreed to—yeas 126, nays 62; and Mr. FINKELNBURG'S amendment (to limit the exemption for House rent to $600, was agreed to without a division. The result is that of the $36,000,000 of income tax, $28,000,000 are wiped off by these amendments. The reduction in this item alone being $19,000,000 more than proposed by Gen. SCHENCK, added to the $20,000,000 reduction by the bill as reported, it makes the grand total of decreased taxation by this Internal revenue bill $82,500,000. The public will see that Congress is coming up to its work.

TAXING THE BONDS.

The Democratic proposition to tax the interest on United States bonds directly, offered by Mr. PECK, yesterday, was defeated today by yeas 78, nays 110. The discussion today was chiefly between Messrs. BECK and BUTLER, for the amendment, and SCHENCK against it. The speech of Mr. BUTLER was especially severe and threatening on the rascally bondholders who don't pay taxes. Twenty-nine Republicans voted yea, and two Democrats voted nay. They are as follows:

Benjamin, Booker, Butler of Massachusetts, Cobb of Wisconsin, Coburn, Cook, Cullom, Dockery, Dyer, Ela, Farnsworth, Fitch, Hamilton, Hawkins, Hay, Hays, Hedin, Ingersoll, Jones of North Carolina, Logan, Orth, Moore of Illinois, Sherrod, Shook of Louisiana, Stokes, Tyner, Whitehouse, Witcher, and Wilson of Ohio.

The Democrats were Messrs. SLOCUM and SCHUMAKER, from the two Brooklyn Districts.

GOVERNMENT EXPENSES IN MAY.

The following were the expenses of the Government for the month of May:

Civil, miscellaneous, &c.	$4,626,625 16
War	4,623,720 61
Navy	2,145,623 05
Interior	672,201 29
Total	$12,068,219 21

This does not include payments made on account of the interest or redemption of the public debt.

THE TARIFF AMENDMENT.

There is much speculation tonight as to what will be the course of the House tomorrow, on Gen. SCHENCK'S tariff amendment to the Tax bill. It is so much longer than was anticipated, and includes so many articles, that the clashing of special interests is likely to result in a warm fight. Quite a large number of the articles are among those not previously discussed in the House, and considerable objection is made on that ground. The general tendency of the bill, however, is so strongly for reduction, that the House will undoubtedly receive it in fact. The House today on a point of order, decided by a very large majority, that a tariff amendment was germane To a tax bill. When the House adjourned to-day there was considerable confusion as to what ought to be done with this measure.

THE ROUMANIA MASSACRE.

The Roumania massacre was a subject of consideration during the morning hour in the Senate. Mr. MORTON presented resolutions adopted by prominent Jews of Indianapolis last night calling the attention of Congress to this great tragedy, and asking intervention by the President to save the Jews of that Principality from further persecution. The memorial went to Mr. SUMNER'S Committee. Mr. SUMNER brought forward a resolution asking the President to furnish any information in possession of the State Department in relation to that affair, which was at once agreed to. Mr. SUMNER said that the interests of humanity demanded that the fullest information should be had by the Senate on this subject. From the best information in his possession the massacre was a most terrible affair, the whole enormity of which was not yet made public. Mr. SPRAGUE said the facts would show that the Jews of Roumania had possessed themselves of nearly all the land and of all the trade of that Principality, while a vast population of Christians there were deprived of the means of support, and that would be found to be the cause of the recent outbreak. The circumstance, in his judgment, furnished food for profound reflection, not only in regard to the condition of affairs in Roumania, but also for application to affairs here in our country, where the tendency is rapid in the same direction. Mr. STEWART said he hoped Mr. SPRAGUE did not mean to imply that when a man gets rich he ought, therefore, to be killed. Mr. SPRAGUE smiled faintly and made no reply.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

MR. VAN WYCK BEFORE THE CURRENCY COMMITTEE.

Mr. VAN WYCK, Secretary of the National Currency and Free Banking Association in New-York, was before the Committee on Banking and Currency today, and presented a copy of the bill to fund the public debt and establish uniform gold and paper currency, to diminish the interest on the debt, stimulate production, protect labor from oppression of capital, &c. The Committee do not incline to its adoption.

NOMINATIONS.

The following nominations were sent today by the President:

WALTER MCVEAGH, of Pennsylvania, to be Minister resident at Constantinople; ADOLPH BUCKNER, to be Consul of Bucharest; B. R. CLIFFE, to be Assessor of Internal Revenue in the Fifth District of Tennessee; LEWIS A. SCOTT, to be Postmaster at Louville, N. Y.

FORTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE....WASHINGTON, Friday, June 3.

Mr. KELLOGG, from the Committee on Commerce, reported resolutions for the appointment of a committee of five by the President of the Senate, whose duty it shall be to consider the whole subject of redeeming the alluvial lands on the lower Mississippi from overflow by a complete levee system, and what action Congress shall take to promote this object. Said committee to sit during the recess of Congress, to report by bill or otherwise and to employ a clerk. Adopted. Mr. POMEROY, from the Committee on Public Lands, reported with amendments, the bill to extend the provisions of Pre-emption laws to the Territory of Colorado, and for other purposes. Mr. WILLIAMS introduced a joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to increase the compensation of Assistant Marshals for taking the census of 1870, the increase not to exceed fifty per centum of the amount of compensation now allowed by law. He gave notice that he would ask the consideration of the resolution to-morrow. (Saturday.)

THE MASSACRE OF JEWS.

Mr. MORTON presented and had read by the Clerk, a memorial and resolutions of the Israelites of Indianapolis, calling attention to the massacre of Jews in Roumania, and requesting interposition of the President of the United States in behalf of that persecuted and outraged people. Referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. SUMNER then offered a resolution, calling upon the President, if in his opinion not incompatible with public interests, for any information in the Department of State concerning a reported persecution and massacre of Israelites in Roumania. He said the reports were so absolutely horrible that it was but natural to suppose them grossly exaggerated. It was incumbent upon us in the interest of humanity to possess all the information concerning it that might be obtainable.

Mr. SPRAGUE attributed the cause of the massacre to the fact that the Jews had obtained possession of all the business, the lands and the trade of the country; that while one class of the people were in poverty, without means or business, there was, on the other hand, an exact money-getting, trade-monopolizing population. It was this condition of things that had brought about the spectacle which the world witnessed. He had no more food for reflection in this for the Senate and for our own country.

Mr. STEWART remarked that if it was the intention of the Senator SPRAGUE to establish the rule that when a man got rich he ought to be killed, it might save inconvenience some Senators, but would bear very hard upon others, and among them the Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. SUMNER'S resolution was then agreed to.

APPORTIONMENT OF REPRESENTATIVES.

A general discussion then took took place as to the order of business. Mr. TRUMBULL endeavoring to get up the bill for apportionment of Representatives in Congress among the several States. He urged its importance in view of the late large increase of the voting population by the accession of the colored element, necessitating changes in the representation of various States. The taking of the census which was now proceeding, and the increase of population in the West, were additional reasons for these changes.

THE INDIAN APPROPRIATIONS.

The Senate then proceeded with the Indian Appropriation bill, and Mr. HARLAN, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, reported a number of amendments, making appropriations to fulfill treaty stipulations, being principally in payment of subsistence and annuities of Indian tribes. The items embraced $250,000 for Arrapahoe and other tribes; $75,000 for Navajoe Indians; $60,000 for Wyandotte Indians; $100,000 to Chippewa Indians, for refunding the amount taken from their tribal funds to pay the expenses of their removal from Minnesota by order of the Government, the money to be placed to their credit and the income expended in the improvement of their lands, purchase of stock, agricultural and other implements. The amendments were agreed to.

A further amendment from the Committee on Indian Affairs to the Indian bill was adopted, appropriating $50,000 to collect, locate and subsist roving Indians on the borders of Texas and Mexico.

PUBLIC LANDS AND THE WEST.

THE BECONES, May, 1870.

Very few persons have a correct idea of the real magnitude and value of the public domain, or of the necessity of grants of lands to railroads. From ignorance, as well as depravity of mind, there has recently been great opposition to railroad land grants, which if not made will leave the Union Pacific Railroad a monopolist of the land route over the continent. That, I am sure, is not denied by the people. The case of the Government in relation to the public domain is precisely that of a farmer, who, with a large farm, but far from market, is told that by giving one acre in thirty he can have a railroad through his farm to market. That is the exact case. Is there a farmer in the whole country who would hesitate a moment? Suppose we were to double that quantity, for collateral advantages, is there a farmer who would hesitate? Now, the fact is that all the public lands granted to the Union Pacific, and all asked for the Northern and the Southern Pacific Roads, do not amount to a thirtieth part of the public domain. Moreover, there is no possibility of getting actual settlers on three-fourths of the public domain, without railroads made by Government aid. Besides, the Union Pacific does not go through the best lands of the Government, nor on the most favorable route. I think I can give a brief digest of the facts regarding the public lands, which is not given by the newspapers, and is of much interest.

1. What and where are the public lands? I shall not include Alaska, for I presume it will be long before any one will want to buy land there. That Territory, however, includes nearly four hundred millions of acres. Nor shall I include the lands east of the Mississippi, where the Government still holds sixty millions of acres. But from the Mississippi to the Pacific, where railroads must be made, the Government holds lands as follows:

	Acres.
1. Iowa, Missouri and Arkansas, in which no grants will be made	18,000,000
2. Dakota and Wyoming	146,296,294
3. Montana	36,864,256
4. Kansas	43,146,274
5. Nebraska	42,522,627
6. Colorado and Idaho	117,960,000
7. New-Mexico and Utah	124,140,000
8. Nevada and Arizona	132,000,000
9. Minnesota	26,776,170
10. California, Oregon and Washington	201,000,000
11. Indiana	44,154,000
Aggregate west of the Mississippi	968,749,521

There are in round numbers, one thousand millions of acres of the public domain between the Mississippi and the Pacific. If the Government grant to the Northern and Pacific Railroads (and to the former its grant is made equitably, and it would be a want of good faith to refuse it) for three thousand miles, at twenty sections, 12,800 acres per mile, the whole amount would be 38,400,000, a fraction over a thirtieth part. Double this, and the Government will be immensely the gainer, and it is the only mode by which these lands can ever be settled.

2. A very large portion of these lands, especially those on the route of the Northern Pacific, are rich and arable. In Minnesota and Dakota there are nearly two hundred millions of acres of public lands, two-thirds of which lie on the direct line from Lake Superior to the Rocky Mountains in Montana. Here is generally a high plain, fertile in soil, admirably watered, and producing the best of grapes and small grain. In Montana, also, there are many valuable lands. I shall say nothing of that vast and fertile tract which lies north of this in British America, and which is hereafter to be added to the United States. Let that question pass into the future; but it is evident to all observing minds that through that immense, and to a great extent arable, country, there must be railroads, which can only be made, for a long time, by Government aid. Now, it will be observed that the whole vast domain I have described is unsold and unappropriated.

3. Let us now look at the manner in which the public lands have recently been distributed. It happens unfortunately that our Government printing is always so far behind that it is impossible to get the official reports till two years after they are made; but I will take 1866 and 1867 as examples. The Commissioner of the Land Office makes the following report of lands disposed of:

Sold for cash	352,204	734,619	1,144,823
Under Homestead acts	1,592,516	1,788,043	3,380,559
With military warrants	405,189	476,793	871,940
Under swamp grants	1,119,189	1,454,020	2,573,159
For railroads	94,646	533,189	627,764
For agricultural colleges	651,066	2,420,072	3,071,138
Total	4,629,312	7,041,114	11,670,426

I presume the lands taken for roads were only those for which deeds were made at the time; not to grants made by law, to take place in future. The above table presents some curious facts. First, we see the actual settlement of the land is rapidly increasing, for the amount disposed of in 1867 was fifty per cent greater than in 1866. Next, we observe that the largest quantity is taken under the Homestead act. Is there not a good deal of speculation under that? But, strange to say, the next largest quantity is under the Agricultural College scrip. I regard that as one of the greatest humbugs I know of. How can you make a farmer of a carpenter by a college? West Point costs about two hundred thousand dollars per annum, and turns out about forty graduates each year, who are practically the best educated men in America. The agricultural colleges will cost twefold as much, and educate nobody. But let us proceed. The public lands have been the great outlet for the overflowing population of the country, and the ambitious politicians. They have operated as a national sewerage. What will happen when the sewerage is gone? But, in the meantime, the public lands have been the inducement to the vast, flowing, impulsive, aggregating people, from every clime and nation, who have gone and are going west of the Mississippi. I present below some of the probable results of the census of 1870 compared with that of 1860:

	In 1860.	In 1870.
Minnesota	172,123	450,000
Iowa	674,948	1,100,000
Missouri	1,182,612	1,530,000
Kansas	107,206	380,000
Arkansas	435,450	600,000
Nebraska	28,841	100,000
Montana, Idaho and Dakota	2,576	100,000
Colorado and New-Mexico	117,599	150,000
Arizona, Nevada and Utah	47,120	100,000
California, Oregon and Washington	428,122	1,000,000
Aggregate	3,197,597	5,530,000

If this estimate be correct, the population west of the Mississippi is now greater than that of the whole of the United States in 1800, and is increasing at the rate of 70 per cent. per annum. It is also plain that the northern rim is increasing at the greatest ratio. In the vast country which lies between the forty-second and forty-ninth degrees, there is a country very productive of grass and small grains, although corn will never be very abundant there. The center of the corn region will always be in the Ohio valley.

In the brief tables above, the reader will get a comprehensive view of the magnitude of our public domain, and of the true mode of improving it. If we suppose the grants made to all the Pacific and other railroads to be 120,000,000 acres, there will remain 848,000,000 unsold and unappropriated. In 1867 we consumed seven millions, and at that rate it will take 125 years to use up all; or taking our uncultivable lands, one hundred years. In the meanwhile we shall annex half of what remains in America, especially the wild lands, so that we need not be alarmed for want of land. No pent-up Utica confines us—no narrow river limits our ambition—till the vast continent is embraced by the Anglo-American.

A VETERAN OBSERVER.

Impecunious Business in Indiana.

From the Indianapolis Journal, May 30.

The decision of Judge DAVIS, in the United States Court on Saturday, in The United States vs. BROOS, is a very important event. In an early case in the Supreme Court of the United States, MARSHALL, C. J., remarked, in a case not however calling for any remark upon the subject, that if one sign a bond as surety for another, upon the express condition that the instrument shall not be delivered until another person shall execute it as surety, and the instrument is delivered to the payee having no knowledge whatever of the condition upon which the surety signed, the latter is not liable. This, of course, was what lawyers call a dictum—not being a point in the case—but it has, from such judges as MARSHALL, and often quoted in obscure file law. It would be astonishing if the creditor might thus be the victim of private understandings of which he is wholly ignorant, and has no reason to suspect. On Saturday, Judge DAVIS held, that the law, if it was, it can be readily seen that there would, in a great multitude of cases, be no security for any public money.

It will be remembered that seven years ago there was no little interest felt in this matter when our Supreme Court, contrary to what had previously been held in this State, upon this ground, discharged the sureties of PERRIN, a County Treasurer, thus involving a loss to the State of some $80,000. Since that the highest Court of New-York has declared the same doctrine, and there seemed a disposition in most of the States to regard it as the law. Kentucky was the first State to resist this new tendency. Next our present Supreme Court placed itself squarely against it by two or three opinions delivered by Judge RAY, which, for power of reasoning and an exhaustive and discriminating review and criticism of the authorities, will compare favorably with any opinions ever delivered by any Court. They cannot be read, we think, without convincing the reader of the truth of the conclusion reached. Maine follows the later Indiana decisions, and it is believed that the Supreme Court of the United States will, at the first opportunity, put itself on the same ground, and probably then all the States will follow.

CURRENT NOTES.

It is said that the amount left by the late HUGH FRASER, of Montreal, for a free public library in that city is over $30,000.

A Missouri paper expresses the opinion that no other State in the Union contains "as much politics and corruption as Kansas."

A District Convention is to be held in Tarrytown on Wednesday next, to effect a more efficient organization of the temperance voters of the Tenth Congressional District—Westchester, Putnam and Rockland Counties.

The National Photographic Association of the United States will hold its second annual meeting and exhibition in Cleveland, Ohio, next week, commencing on Tuesday, 7th inst., and continuing through to Saturday, 14th.

An Otsego County lawyer, who some months since was put off the cars on the Central Railroad because he refused to give up his ticket before a seat was provided for him, has sued the Company for damages.

The Auburn News speaks mysteriously of a new express company now in process of organization, and says that the scheme is a gigantic one, and will rival in greatness of conception that of the other company, now merged with the American, which has made the name of Auburn so famous.

A woman in Aroostook County, Me., whose house caught fire the other day during the absence of all the "men folks," poured upon the flames all the water there was in the house, then used up her milk and cream, and finally resorted to her meat-barrels for the pickle. She subdued the flames.

The last Nevada Legislature proposed a women's suffrage amendment to the State Constitution, and a call has been issued for a Convention in Winnemucca on the 4th of July, for the formation of a State organization to bring the issue fairly before the people at the next election.

It is related that when the sum fixed upon for the salary of the new Episcopal Bishop of New-Hampshire was announced, a great white rooster flew upon the fence around the church in which the convention was sitting, and gave a lusty, vigorous crow. The omen was considered good.

Gen. JOHN F. APPLETON, who was recently appointed and confirmed as Judge of the United States Court for the Eastern District of Texas, is quite ill in California of consumption. He is the eldest son of Chief-Justice APPLETON, of Maine, and is a young man of sound judgment, high attainments, noble character and fine ability.

A painter in Pittsburg, Penn., while at work on the top of a ladder at the third story of a house, on Thursday, fell, the round breaking. His fall broke several other rounds, but at length he struck one which was stronger, and was precipitated forward through the second-story window, and fell sprawling at full length, but fortunately not seriously injured, on the floor of the room.

The Richmond Whig condemns the action of the Commissioners in throwing out votes for the Republican candidates for municipal offices in that city. It says that it would not, if it could, regain by fraud or unfair means that which was lost by the Conservatives' fault, and that it therefore, for itself and, as it believes, for ninety-nine hundredths of the Conservative citizens, utterly repudiates the illegal action of the three Commissioners.

There will be no Democratic State Convention in Minnesota this year, and therefore the Democratic State Central Committee has deemed it expedient to issue an address defining the position that the Democratic Party should occupy. They say the tariff question is the issue of the day, and urge their party to reaffirm in unmistakable terms, at all Congressional conventions, &c., their time-honored and unfaltering opposition to a protective tariff, and all other kinds of class legislation.

Portsmouth, N. H., has sustained a severe loss in the sudden and unexpected death, on Thursday, of Col. ALBERT L. JONES, a member of the well-known mercantile house of WILLIAM JONES & SON. He was among the most enterprising citizens of the place, had been a representative in the State Legislature, and was using his great wealth in a manner that was incidentally doing much to benefit his native city. His genial manners, his well-known ability and his liberality had made all who knew him his friends.

A private letter from Hon. SHELBY M. CULLOM, written in 1867, is published in Illinois papers, in which he promised that if Col. ROB, whom he "regarded as a very good man," and who previously "did him the honor to nominate him for Congress," would reconsider his determination to become a candidate himself, he would, at the end of the present Congress, "return the compliment, for three times three." These Illinois papers, complaining that Mr. CULLOM has now forgotten this promise, and manifests no willingness to return the compliment, even once, say that one of so ordinary capacity has no just claims on their further support.

The Kentucky Democratic State Central Committee has issued a circular advising that in cases in which it may be necessary to make nominations for office, the delegate convention system be used in preference to primary elections, and they enjoin upon all the cultivation of a spirit of harmony and ready acquiescence in the action of their several committees and of their conventions, as the only means of securing unity of action throughout the State, and ultimate victory over antagonists prompt to avail themselves of any discord arising in the Democratic ranks. "Ultimate victory" sounds rather queer in the mouths of Kentucky Democrats.

The brilliant speech which Prince ARTHUR made at the presentation of colors to the volunteers at Huntingdon, is thus reported in the Canadian papers: "It gives me great satisfaction to be present on this interesting occasion, and more as that the occasion is one in which you have been called out in defense of the country, and that your conduct during it deserves the highest praise. Should your services be again required, I am sure you will defend these colors with the same pluck and patriotic devotion which you have recently exhibited, and in that future I wish you all prosperity." Dizit, and there was great cheering.

Pennsylvania's present delegation in Congress consists of eighteen Republicans and six Democrats. After a careful review of the field the Philadelphia Telegraph concludes that in the next Congress the members from the Second, Third, Fourth, Seventh, Ninth, Fourteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-second, Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth will probably all be Republicans, while those districts on which the Democracy can confidently rely—the First, Sixth, Eighth, Eleventh, Twelfth and Fifteenth—are but six in number. This leaves five districts—the Fifth, Tenth, Thirteenth, Sixteenth and Twenty-first—as debatable ground, and the Republicans have a fair chance of carrying all of them.

The Toronto Globe gives a list of ten Fenians killed and thirteen wounded in the recent raid, as follows: Killed—John Rowe, of Buffalo; M. O'Brien, of Norish; Gen. J. J. Donnelly, of Utica; —— Duffy, Dennis Duggan, Edward Griffin, of Rochester; George Hughes, James Michael Evans, of Troy; Francis Lafin, of Newark; Chas. James Clancy—10. Wounded—Lieut. Edward Hope, of Bridgeport; Frank Gartman, of Bridgeport; Capt. E. Cronan, James Keenan, of Fort Edward; Lieut. Edward Hollaghan, (or Callaghan,) of Burlington; Charles Carlton, of Cambridge, Vt.; Daniel Abern, of Winooski, Vt.; Michael Flynn, of New-York; James Joseph Collins, of Boston; Timothy Moriarty, Patrick Downey, Michael Callaghan, James Attridge—13.

The Aldine Press for June, which has so justly won such high praise for its rare excellence in typography and engraving, contains eleven engravings, including one of Doré's exquisite illustrations of the Bible, "The Pharisee and the Publican." There are also, "The Frightened Ducklings," and "An Indian Foray in the West," the latter, by F. O. C. DARLEY, filling one of the large pages of the Press.

THE NINTH CENSUS.

Complete List of Census Enumerators Appointed for this City—Summary of the Questions Which Will be Asked.

The selection of Census Enumerators for this City was completed yesterday by Gen. SHARPE, United States Marshal for the Southern District of New-York. In making the appointments, which number upward of 200 names, great care was taken to obtain men of intelligence, honest and character for the places, and the result in this respect has been highly successful. Hon. THOS. ACTON, of the United States Assay Office, formerly a Commissioner of Metropolitan Police, rendered considerable voluntary assistance to Gen. SHARPE and Gen. TAUSNAWNE, his Chief Deputy, in determining the reputation and qualifications of the numerous persons who were applicants for the positions. The work of enumeration will commence in a day or two, and is expected to last for six or eight weeks, if not longer, in some cases. Care has been taken by Gen. SHARPE to have it performed in as reliable a manner as possible. The importance to, for as this City is concerned, will consist in showing the rate of local improvement in population, wealth, commercial and social influence during the past decade, besides presenting other valuable information. A long schedule of questions has been prepared for the enumerators, the refusal to answer which will involve a heavy penalty. The questions relate, among other things, to nationality, birth-place, age, sex, color, occupation, profession or trade, condition, whether married, widowed or single; the value of real estate and of personal property, educational and sanitary matters, &c. One of the queries will furnish a data for ascertaining the exact number of local voters in the City.

The New Industrial Exhibition.

Among the many plans for providing popular instruction and amusement in this City is that of the Industrial Exhibition, which it is proposed to open in 1872 and to keep in perpetual operation. The Legislature granted a charter to a company of gentlemen of this City, giving them authority under which they propose to erect a mammoth exhibition-hall for art, industry and amusement, much after the general style of the Crystal Palace, in Sydenham, the fame of which has extended over the world. The cost of the building alone is estimated by millions, while it is designed to fill it with galleries of paintings and statuary, conservatories of rare plants and flowers, collections of improved mechanical inventions, competitive exhibitions of agricultural and horticultural productions; halls for public gatherings and scientific instruction,—and as many other attractions as a liberal use of a liberal supply of money can gather together, in the successive months and years. It is to be kept open Winter and Summer, and is to be emphatically the people's work-shop and play-house combined. It is claimed that such an exhibition can be made, if rightly organized and managed, one of the best and most attractive features of New-York, and that its pecuniary success, if it is centrally located, would be ample. It is farther urged, as the Industrial Exhibition will be attractive above all other places of resort in Winter, that a site in the suburbs, advantageous, perhaps, in the milder seasons, would be less available than a thoroughly central position. Some idea of the value which such an exhibition is likely to be to the City, and consequently to all of its trade people, may be gained by the great number of visitors who have been attracted to the cities where the great temporary exhibitions have been held. More than six million visits were made to the World's Fair of 1851 in London during its duration (141 days); the equal number attended the Exhibition of 1862 in the same city; the visitors to the Sydenham Palace have been 30,000, 40,000, and even 60,000 in a day; an average of 22,000 persons visited the Palais de l'Industrie in Paris in 1855. The Company announce that as soon as the site upon the Bloomingdale Road is ready to proceed vigorously with the plans for the edifice, which is designed to be the finest structure in the City, and then to carry its construction to a speedy conclusion, that the Exhibition may open in 1872.

CUSTOM-HOUSE AFFAIRS.

The Regulations Regarding the Steam-Ship Companies' Store-Houses—Views of the Collector and of the Consignees Agents.

Some time ago Collector GRINNELL issued an order, directing that goods subject to general order, which were placed by certain steam-ship companies in the store-houses owned by them in Jersey City and Hoboken, must thereafter be transferred to bonded warehouses in the City of New-York. There was considerable opposition to this regulation, but the Collector felt that the interests of the Government required that it should be complied with, and it was accordingly enforced. The Collector claimed that as these buildings were in the entire control of the steamship companies—Customs officers being only in charge of the doors—there was no security for goods placed therein, and nothing to prevent their being tampered with by interested parties. He recalled instances where cases containing goods had remained on storage in some of these warehouses for twelve months, and then, on being examined, prior to a sale of unclaimed goods, would be found to be filled with worthless stuff which had never been imported, and was in all probability placed there by parties who had abstracted the imported goods and substituted the trash. The Collector insisted that all imported articles must pass from the side of the ship into the possession of Custom-house officers and remain in charge of sworn officials of the Government until the duties were paid or until they were duly released according to law. This could not be done if the goods were sent into these store-houses, and for that reason he required that the transfer to New-York bonded warehouses should be made.

The steam-ship companies complained principally that this new regulation entailed great expense upon them. They had built these store-houses at great cost for their accommodation, and thus to be deprived of them, or to be compelled, they thought, right. It was their practice, on the arrival of a vessel, to send all goods at once into the warehouses on the dock, thus facilitating the discharge of the steamer and enabling her to load for a return trip. For this service they demanded and received $1 for each case, which covered a time and for truckage and handling and storage for one month. The goods might be removed the next day, under permit, but still the charge of $1 was demanded. To send goods over to New-York would delay the unloading of the cargo, and entail considerable expense upon the consignees, besides requiring them to pay the storage charges, and to have and to done by the companies having docks on this side, upon goods placed in the warehouses for the convenience of the companies. The companies claimed the right to pursue this course under a clause in the bill of lading, which gave them authority to land goods the moment the ship was moored in the dock.

The merchants found no fault with the new regulation. Large importers had an arrangement with the companies by which, if goods arrived after hours, they could the next day send their carts for them and take them out under permit, by paying a nominal charge for trucking and handling. If their goods were sent to the City in the first instance the charges upon them would be less, and they would be much more readily got at. Small importers were, of course, satisfied with the new arrangement, as they felt that their goods were more secure, and they were more likely to be notified of their arrival. Besides, the charges for cartage and storage were only $1 25, which included all the expense of transferring goods from the ship to the public stores in New-York. Under the old plan the for-riages alone would be sixty cents, making, with the companies' charges and detention, a sum far exceeding the limit under the new system.

The brokers were, of course, dissatisfied with any reform which tended to diminish their fees, and united their opposition to that of the steamship companies. They brought all the pressure possible to bear upon the Secretary of the Treasury with a view to having the order rescinded, but the result does not seem to be satisfactory to them. The Secretary, in his note to Mr. GRINNELL, published in the Tribune of yesterday, says:

"Upon full deliberation of the papers relating to the storage of goods upon delivery from the vessels of the foreign steam-ship companies, I can see no valid objection to the use of the stores upon the companies' piers if those stores can be placed under the exclusive control of officers of the Customs. By this I mean that the officers of the vessels and the subordinates of every kind shall be excluded from these stores, to be used and kept open for the public only, to be treated and managed precisely as other store-houses are treated and managed, and the proprietors of the steam-ships and their servants to be treated by the store-house proprietors precisely as other parties are treated. Should the managers of the steam-ships consent to this arrangement, I see no good reason why the business of storage cannot be restored to the ware-houses on the piers."

The officers of the Bremen and Hamburg lines of steam-ships waited upon the Collector yesterday, expecting that some modification of his order would be made. Mr. GRINNELL inquired if they were prepared to comply with the suggestion of the Secretary and place their warehouses "under the exclusive control of officers of the Customs," whereupon they expressed the opinion that the Collector must have heeded the order of the Secretary. Mr. GRINNELL replied that it was not an order as appeared upon its face. It was simply a suggestion. If the companies were willing to comply with its spirit he had no objection to the restoration of the business of storage to the warehouses of the company. But the Government must be fully protected by having its officers in exclusive charge of the buildings at all times, and the companies could have no authority over them except for the purposes of collecting storage dues, &c. The interview was somewhat lengthy, but no conclusion was arrived at, though it is expected that the companies will take measures to comply with the suggestions of the Secretary, inasmuch as the business of discharging their ships would be greatly facilitated.

The American Institute Fair for 1870—When and Where it is to be Held—Character of the Exhibition.

The Board of Managers of the American Institute have already sent out their circular pamphlets setting forth that the Institute will "again hold an Autumnal exhibition in the great structure known as the Empire Skating Rink," Third avenue, between Sixty-third and Sixty-fourth streets, which structure has been greatly enlarged and improved, and made more desirable as a place for the proposed exhibition. The rink will be opened for the reception of goods on Monday, Aug. 29, 1870, and on Wednesday, Sept. 7, the grand Exhibition will be formally opened to the public by an address, at 12 o'clock M. It will remain open every secular day, from 9 A. M. to 10 P. M., until Wednesday evening, Nov. 2, when the closing address will be delivered, and awards to successful competitors will be announced.

The exhibition will be divided into seven departments, each containing seven groups, or subdivisions, to be known as the "Department of Fine Arts and Education," comprising paintings, sculpture, musical instruments, engravings, specimens of printing, book-binding, philosophical and mathematical instruments, &c. "The Department of the Dwelling," comprising apparatus for cooking, warming, illumination and ventilation, kitchen-ware, furniture, carpets, tapestry, furniture, cutlery, building necessories, &c. "The Department of Dress and Handicraft," comprising ladies' and gentlemen's apparel, cloths, woven, knit or felted fabrics, sewing-machines, medical and surgical apparatus and instruments, jewelry, trunks, writing desks, &c. "The Department of Chemistry and Mineralogy," comprising soaps and all cleansing compounds, artificial fertilizers, soda and mineral waters, wines, disinfectants, leather, India rubber, paints, dye-stuffs, flour, building stone, &c. "The Department of Engines and Machinery," including stationary engines, pumps, machinery for working metals or wood, for preparing fibres and tissues, for grinding and crushing grain, &c. "The Department of Intermunication," comprising locomotives, cars, carriages, models of vessels and apparatus for steering them, telegraphs, fire engines, safes, hoisting apparatus, army apparatus used in movements or in camp, ornamental work for churches or cemeteries, &c. "The Department of Agriculture and Horticulture," for plants, flowers, fruit, vegetables, agricultural implements, products of the soil used in the arts, &c. There will also be this year, in addition to the usual premiums, a great medal of honor, including the highest prizes, to be awarded to the inventor of some new and original machine, product or process never before exhibited at the Institute fairs, which shall be adjudged so important in its use or application as to supplant every article previously used for accomplishing the same purpose, and to work a favorable revolution in some branch of the useful arts.

The Pearl-Street Homicide.

A post-mortem examination was held yesterday by Drs. WOOSTER BEACH and CUSHMAN on the body of PATRICK HERMAN, who met with his death from bullet-wounds at the hands of Officer BURKE, of the Fourth Precinct, during an affray in front of No. 307 Pearl-street, as already reported in the TIMES. The autopsy developed the presence of two wounds, one in the back, the bullet passing between the shoulder-blades about an inch to the right of the spinal column, entering the left lung and causing death through internal hemorrhage. The bullet-wound in the head was about two inches behind the left ear, the ball penetrating the skull, and passing out about two inches higher, producing only a slight concussion, which could not necessarily have been fatal. A jury having been empanneled and the body viewed, permission was given by Coroner HOLLINS, who has the investigation of the case in charge, to remove the corpse to No. 307 Pearl-street, for interment. The jury were Messrs. Jackson S. Schultz, A. W. Benson, Henry C. Petty, James G. Dunard, William Paton, John Dawson, James Riley and Charles W. Hall, were then permitted to retire, with instructions to meet at the Coroner's office at 1 o'clock today, when the inquest will be held. Officer WILLIAM BURKE is still under arrest to await the result of the investigation. He is suffering somewhat from the injuries he has received.

WHAT MR. MARK LANIGAN SAYS.

The "Fourth Ward Club," to which HERMAN belonged, is known as the "Mark Lanigan Association," and its founder denies that it is a disreputable organization, composed of roughs and rowdies. Mr. LANIGAN, who is a Republican, insists that the murder was one of political revenge, and declares that when the testimony is all presented to the public that fact will be established.

Complimentary to an Octogenarian Merchant.

At about 1 o'clock P. M., yesterday, Col. ISAAC H. REED, of the Board of Trustees of the Produce Exchange Company, on behalf of the Company, quietly proceeded to the provision department of the Exchange, and greeting N. T. HUBBARD, Esq., the oldest merchant connected with the produce trade of the City, addressed him as follows:

Mr. HUBBARD, in contemplating your lifelong association with the produce business of this City, the return of the anniversary of your birthday extending into so unusually a long period of life, (eighty-five years as I am informed,) has been deemed by the Trustees of the Produce Exchange Company a fitting occasion to tender to you, as an evidence of the high estimation in which you are held, the freedom of the Exchange; and to myself, as one of their number, the pleasing duty has been assigned of conveying to you the resolution of the Board of Trustees to that effect, which resolution I now have the honor to present to you. Sir, you have been known long and intimately by very many of us, and all can say that during the very many years that you have been engaged in your special business your transactions have been marked by all that is noble and upright. No person can say aught against you. You have done good to many, evil to none—an example most worthy of emulation. May you live to enjoy many happy years, and God's blessing attend you always!

The following was then handed by Col. REED to Mr. HUBBARD:

NEW-YORK PRODUCE EXCHANGE,
NEW-YORK, May 23, 1870.

N. T. Hubbard, Esq.:

SIR: I have the honor of informing you that by a resolution of the Board of Trustees of the New-York Produce Exchange Company, passed as a recent meeting held by them, the freedom of the Exchange was, by a unanimous vote, accorded to you, which resolution I have pleasure in conveying to the high esteem in which you are held by our body.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

S. W. CARLEY,
Secretary of the Board of Trade.

To the address Mr. HUBBARD responded with evident emotion, and with the characteristic modesty, and returning his very sincere thanks for the graceful compliment. He valued it as an evidence that he had not failed in his ever-fondly cherished purpose of being honest in all his dealings. He hoped to leave behind him a name without a blemish.

Mr. HUBBARD is probably the oldest merchant now in active connection with the business interests of the City in any line. He was born in the village of Sothfield, L. I., on the 29th of May, 1785. He commenced life in New-York as a grocery merchant, in the year 1807, in a store in Catharine-street, between Cherry and Water streets, opposite the Catharine Market. He subsequently moved to Cherry-street, near Rutgers. About half a century ago he removed to the First Ward, where he has ever since been located. He has occupied his present business place for about forty years. In years gone by his house has been widely known under the successive names of N. T. HUBBARD, H. T. HUBBARD & Co., HUBBARD, CHERRY & Co., and N. T. HUBBARD & SONS. Mr. HUBBARD is now again alone. He enjoys very good health. All who know him accord to him the highest respect as a representative of mercantile probity.

The Stanton Memorial Fund—Interesting Correspondence Between Alexander T. Stewart and Mrs. Edwin M. Stanton.

It appears that the movement set on ticket dealers was fixed by the act of 1868 at 1%, and that act gave the same density as there was "lottery ticket dealers" as was given, in 1869, in the act of 1869. The amendment of 1869 was by the act of 1869 to extend the operation of the act of 1868 to the entire Bitter section, only imposing the tax expressed, the fine, or both, as a punishment on a conviction for carrying on the business without paying the special tax, instead of imposing it on a conviction for carrying on the business without paying the special tax. Now, in this legislation that makes the thirteenth section of the act of 1868 amendatory of the seventy-third section of the act of 1864, as amended by the act of 1868. The two can stand together quite well in the country that section of the act of 1864 could be fore the amendment of 1868 stand with the thirteenth section of the act of 1868. We have the act of July 27, 1868, (14 U. S. Stat. at Large, 271.) Congress having by the act of July 14, 1866, (14 U. S. Stat. at Large, 98.) imposed a tax on the business of a lottery-dealer, and applied it to the provisions of the act of 1864, and to extend the thirteenth section of the act of March 2, 1868, imposing a punishment by imprisonment on a conviction for engaging or being concerned in the business of a lottery-dealer without having first obtained a license so to do. It was apparent that an error had been committed in the act of March 2, 1868, in that it was intended to amend the act of July 14, 1866, and yet it was made to amend a section in the act of 1864, which section had been repealed by the act of July 14, 1866, and the act of July 27, 1868, was intended to amend the act of July 14, 1866, providing the thirteenth section of the act of 1868 as amended by the act of July 27, 1868, "without having first obtained a license so to do." CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, a resolution providing for the appointment by the President of the Senate of a committee of five to consider the subject of redeeming the alluvial lands on the Lower Mississippi from overflow, to sit during recess, and report by bill or otherwise, was adopted. The bill to extend the provisions of Preemption laws to Colorado was reported with amendments. A memorial and resolutions of Israelites of Indianapolis, Ind., calling attention to the Roumania massacre, and requesting the interposition of the President in behalf of the persecuted people, was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations. A resolution calling on the President for information on this subject was adopted, after some discussion. An unsuccessful attempt was made to bring up the bill for the apportionment of Representatives in Congress, but the Senate instead, took up the Indian Appropriation bill, which was debated and amended until 4½ P. M., when the Senate adjourned till today.

In the House, after the presentation of petitions and reports, a resolution relating to the persecution of the Israelites in Roumania was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs. The bill to reduce the taxes was then taken up, and the House proceeded to vote on the amendments to the section relating to the income tax. The amendment reducing the rate from five to three per cent. was adopted by a yea and nay vote of 114 to 71. An amendment making the amount exempt from taxation $2,000 was adopted by 133 to 62. That limiting the amount of exemption for house rent to $500 was also agreed to by 95 to 43. That providing that the income tax shall not continue or be collected after 1870 was rejected by 78 to 126. That prohibiting the publication of income returns was adopted. An amendment adding to exemptions losses by floods was agreed to. Another exempting wages of minor children not received was agreed to. An amendment to strike out all the sections relating to the income tax was rejected by 60 to 122. A protracted debate arose on an amendment to include United States bonds among those of corporations from which the tax is to be deducted, which was rejected by 110 nays to 75 yeas. The other sections were proceeded with, and a point was made on an amendment to reduce the tariff on sugar, whether tariff provisions were in order in an internal revenue bill. The Speaker decided they were, but submitted the question to the House, which, by a vote of 117 to 32, decided that the amendment was germane to the bill. The Speaker, however, decided that the amendment could not be offered to the pending section. On reaching the last section the previous question was moved, but without action the House adjourned.

GENERAL.

A Canadian dispatch of yesterday says the Fenians Gleason, Donnelly, Lindsay, Collins, Fitzpatrick, McNeil, Glass and Smith, have all been released on bail.

The officers of several steam-ship companies waited upon Collector GRINNELL yesterday, expecting that he would restore the general order business to their wave-houses in Jersey City and Hoboken. They were not prepared to comply with the suggestions of the Secretary of the Treasury and place their store-houses under the exclusive control of Customs officers, and, therefore, no conclusion was arrived at.

The delegation of the Boston Board of Trade was received on Thursday night in San Francisco by the Chamber of Commerce.

Several wrecks are reported to have occurred on the Pacific coast during a recent storm and several lives lost.

Seventy-five Chinamen left San Francisco on Thursday to work in Massachusetts boot and shoe shops.

The conductor of the train on the Watertown, Rome and Ogdensburg Railroad, who called in the aid of the United States troops, at Williamstown, to suppress disorder among passengers, consisting chiefly of Fenians, gives an account of the affair, from which it appears that the soldiers did not fire upon the Fenians, but that the firing was the work of New-York roughs on the train during a riot between them and the Fenians. The soldiers charged with bayonets.

A correspondent of a Canada paper writes from St. Cloud, Minn., that REIL is not satisfied with the recent Canadian legislation in relation to the Red River, and meditates resistance to the Red River Expedition. A battle was expected to be fought near the Lake of the Woods. The information was received from a friend of REIL.

The Republican County Convention, which closed its session at Wilmington, N. C., on Thursday evening, nominated a colored man for the Senate, and three colored men for the Lower House of the Legislature; also, a colored candidate for Sheriff. Great dissatisfaction is expressed by many white and some colored Republicans, and a new Convention will probably be held.

The American Consulat St. Johns, Province of Quebec, writes to a Burlington paper, in relation to the alleged insult to the American flag at that place, as follows: "The halyards only were cut, in the evening, after the flag had been taken down and put into the office of the Consulate. 'No insult.' Sufficient apology has already been made."

In the Presbyterian General Assembly, at Philadelphia, yesterday, six of the old trustees of the Corporate General Assembly were removed to give place to six to be chosen from the New School branch of the Church. A Provisional Freedmen's Board of twelve persons, to be located in Pittsburg, was constituted.

Marshal SHARP appointed about 250 men yesterday to aid as enumerators in taking the census for this City. They will commence work some time next week.

The Income Tax.

The income tax discussion in the House has revealed the extent to which the views persistently maintained by the TIMES are shared by influential Republicans, and by the country. In opposition to much senseless clamor, we have contended for the continuance of the tax, in a modified shape, as one of the most equitable, and withal least burdensome, forms of revenue. We have now the satisfaction of knowing that both points are sustained by the House. The tax is to be renewed, but the rate is hereafter to be three instead of five per cent. Another of the suggestions of the TIMES—that the amount exempted under the head of rent should be fixed at a moderate figure—has also prevailed; the House limiting the amount to five hundred dollars. The general exemption has been increased from one to two thousand dollars,—thus still further narrowing the class on whom the burden of the tax will fall.

Nothing could be more absurd than the outcry which certain journals have raised against this form of taxation. A tax directly borne by less than three hundred thousand persons in the whole country, could not with any semblance of truth be assailed as oppressive or obnoxious to the community at large. It is a tax upon means that can without inconvenience endure taxation—upon realized profits in business, or upon incomes exceeding a mark which separates poverty from comparative comfort. By no other method is it possible so completely to relieve the poor from taxation, or so fairly to adjust the load to the strength of those who are required to carry it. There is, indeed, an obvious impropriety in confounding sources of income,—in subjecting to the same rate of taxation receipts derived from labor or trade, which vicissitudes may at any moment paralyze, with receipts accruing from realized wealth, and therefore, humanly speaking, permanent in their character. This is the only manifest wrong with which the tax as hitherto administered has been chargeable. Attempts to apply a remedy seem to have failed—though of course the doubling of the sum exempted lessens the injustice, and will altogether relieve those least able to pay the tax. A tax which operates only upon incomes in excess of two thousand dollars, and which, moreover, presupposes a further exemption of five hundred dollars on account of rent, will touch no man who can reasonably complain of poverty.

The limitation of the exempted rental is another reform to which no rational objection can be urged. By permitting an unlimited deduction on this ground, the law has hitherto extended an extravagant favor to those least in need of it. The man who can afford to pay thousands for house-rent can well afford to pay the income tax. The exemption now proposed is ample for the only purpose which renders any exemption excusable. And the reduction of the tax from five to three per cent. mitigates the unfairness of the refusal to discriminate between fixed and terminable incomes.

The satisfaction with which we record yesterday's decision is increased by the fact that Mr. SCHENCK's bill provides for the correction of the abuses which have been at the bottom of all honest opposition to the tax. There is no reason why this tax should be more offensive in its operation than any other fiscal contrivance. Its inquisitorial character is the result simply of indiscretion in the preparation of the original law, and want of integrity and judgment in its administration. The Ways and Means Committee have endeavored to guard against the perpetuation of a great scandal and a grievous wrong; and we doubt not that the House, which has evinced so manly an appreciation of public opinion upon this subject, will sustain provisions designed to prevent needless offense in the imposition of the tax, and a needless publicity in regard to its collection. The main object to be secured is the acquisition of a certain revenue from a certain class—the revenue being moderate in rate, and the class well able to pay it. Beyond this, it is the duty of our lawgivers to protect those whom the operation of the law affects from the annoyance and the injury which have been fruitful sources of discontent.

Accounts on Pedlemen.

It has long been the custom of the criminal classes in this City to "mark down" anybody who happens to give them offense, and to wreak their vengeance upon him in some cowardly form or other at the first opportunity they can find. Thus, one day last week, a car conductor on the Fourth-avenue road turned a couple of pickpockets off his car just as they were beginning operations. A few evenings later one of these men, at midnight, made a rush at the conductor with an open knife, and had he not turned round in time to ward off the assault he might have been crippled for some weeks, if not killed outright. Attacks like this are soon made—all is over before the passers-by in the streets thoroughly understand what has happened.

The Police are, of course, more liable than anybody else to the vengeance of thieves and ruffians. Let a policeman do his duty faithfully and he stands a risk of being hunted down by the friends of some scoundrel whom he has brought to justice. He is nearly certain to get the worst of it, for it is not difficult for a band of cut-throats to catch a solitary man at a disadvantage. REAL found it easy enough to shoot his man from ambush—and we need not say that REAL discovered that "killing is no murder" where a policeman is concerned.

Two other cases of assault have just occurred in the City. A notorious saloon having changed proprietors, the Police Superintendent ordered some of his men to keep a watch on the place so as to drive away the thieves. An officer named DUCKMAN, in pursuance of his orders, directed a couple of bad characters to "move on" from the locality. Thereupon one of them sneaked behind DUCKMAN, and stabbed him twice with a pocket-knife. DUFFY, the stabber, "is a well-known Democratic politician," says the report, "and at the late election was made an inspector of elections in the Eighth Ward." He and his companion are now in custody.

In the second case, summary justice overtook one out of three men who cruelly attacked a policeman named BURKE. The officer was knocked to the ground, but managed to draw his revolver, and with that he shot one of the would-be assassins dead. The other two men are in the hands of the Police. Officer BURKE's offense consisted in his arresting a bad character named MURGAN. HERNAN, the man killed, "was a member of a Fourth Ward club of roughs and rowdies."

With him we have no more to do; but the four men who are now in custody must not be allowed to slip through the fingers of justice. It is all very well to complain of the Police, but unless the authorities protect the Police in the exercise of their duties, the best force in the world would soon be demoralized. The Police ought to feel confident that when they arrest bad characters, strict justice will be meted out to the prisoners. Assaults on officers such as those we have described, ought to be punished with the utmost rigor of the law. Unless this is done, there will soon be no protection whatever for decent citizens in this community.

When Will Reconstruction be Completed?

The continued exclusion of Georgia is an injustice to the people of that State, and a stigma upon Republican statesmanship. For the only open question relates to the terms of the legislation upon which the restoration of the State shall be effected: and the delay in defining these terms is the result of a strange infirmity of purpose on the part of the majority in Congress.

The reopening of the subject had its justification in the perverse conduct of the Georgia Democracy. Their bad faith, their repeated manifestations of hostility to the fundamental features of reconstruction, and their evident determination to acquire control of the State by any means, and at all hazards, were circumstances which rendered necessary the interposition of Federal authority. Congress was compelled to choose between an ignominious surrender of its own policy, and the vindication of that policy by enforcing its conditions, and exacting guarantees for their observance. On this ground we upheld the legislation adopted at the outset of the session. But having dictated terms, Congress was bound to follow compliance with them with the prompt admission of the State. The precise manner of admission had been settled in the cases of Virginia and Texas; the only peculiarities in the case of Georgia arising out of a quarrel which has no national significance, and which only paltry personal animosities have kept alive at Washington.

The bill reported by the Reconstruction Committee met all reasonable requirements, but the House engrafted upon it the Bingham amendment, which was directed against an alleged purpose to prolong the official existence of the State Executive, and unduly to extend the duration of the State Legislature. The amendment had its origin in those personal squabbles which Congress should in no manner have recognized, and has proved the chief source of difficulty and delay. The Senate, with proverbial loquacity, talked the whole subject over and over again, with all the bitterness which marked the earliest debates on reconstruction,—finally substituting a measure known as the Pomeroy Military bill. The result, both in the House and Senate, was effected by a combination of the Democrats with a minority of Republicans. Thus in both instances the preference of the Republican majority, to which the Reconstruction Committee had given adequate expression, was overruled.

But the end, apparently, was still as far off as ever. Once more the subject reverted to the Reconstruction Committee. There it rests,—not, we believe, because of the inaction or indecision of that body, but because of the obstacles to action in the House itself. Some excuse for delay may have existed pending the Senatorial investigation into certain proceedings of Gov. BULLOCK, against whom, however, nothing has been shown that should sway the decision of a question with which by his official position he is connected. There is no evidence that he seeks an unfair advantage, or that his aims are otherwise than in harmony with those of the great body of the Georgia Republicans. He has neither asked nor desired an extension of his own term of office.

The only assigned pretext for delay having been removed, it is not unreasonable to hope that the Committee's bill will be reported and acted upon favorably at an early day. It meets the requirements of the State, and will insure its readmission on a basis which should be satisfactory. The earliest possible attainment of that result is desirable in the interest of the State, and as securing the final removal from the Congressional arena of a controversy which has too long vexed and embarrassed the Republican Party.

A New Order of the Bath.

PLATO makes public baths one of the essentials to his perfect Republic, but the notions of PLATO and those of the City Fathers of New-York have been so thoroughly at variance, that it is somewhat surprising to find them for once in harmony. The first public bath is "inaugurated," or rather launched, in Manhattan. On Thursday last, occurred this auspicious event, which might well be celebrated hereafter as Ablution Day, since it is hardly irreverent to claim that it signalizes an occasion as important to the health of the living as Decoration Day is to the memory of the dead. It is something to have attained a point in civilization which the cities of Greece and Rome rejoiced in a couple of thousand years ago. At all events, it cannot be said of this, as of some of our modern improvements, that it is premature. The accumulation of dirt in New-York fairly justifies all honorable efforts to get rid of it. The rivers that run by us on either hand, as soft and refreshing as HOMER tells us were the streams of Scamander, afford such admirable opportunity for this, as to make it amazing that they have never been made proper use of before. However, as Lord LYTTON tells us, there is a future for all men—including City Fathers—who have the virtue to repent and the energy to atone; and should the strides they have thus taken toward popular cleanliness render unstable their own official tenure—should their fate unhappily be like that of the eagle who

"Viewed his own feather in the fatal dart,
And winged the shaft that quivered in his heart,"

—they will at least, like other unrequited servants of the public, enjoy the novel consolation of having done their duty.

To bathe, we are told on very good authority, is "to surround the body, or a portion of it, for a temporary period, by a medium different from that in which it usually exists." The first effect of this in the case of most persons for whose benefit the institutions, whose advent we chronicle, are constructed, will doubtless be one of unmitigated astonishment. This is the common experience, and the loathing of children for soap and water is warranted by the traditions of remote antiquity. Few English people were over nice about the cleanness of their skins in 1399, and the forty-six esquires, who in that year sat up all night and washed themselves, as a preparation for assisting in the coronation of HENRY IV., were probably as much surprised as the ingenuous youth of the Sixth Ward might be by a similar ceremony. The forty-six esquires became the first Knights of the Bath, and ever since, from Poictiers to Sebastopol, the honor has been craved and struggled for that they first received. Republicans care little for such distinctions, but they may wisely give heed to the special lesson they were originally meant to convey, and the wholesome practice they sought to typify and inculcate. The purity of the skin suggested the spotlessness of the mind and of the heart, and these, Tria juncta in uno, made up the chief characteristics of the Christian gentleman. It is a truth, the explanation of which is not entirely obvious, that he who washes and is made clean really obtains at the same time a strong impulsion to cleanse himself morally as well as physically. There is a healthful augury, then, in the launching of this first Free Bath of New-York, which is to be followed immediately by another. The only doubt—a grave one—is whether, given the baths, the people will wash. One man may lead a horse to water, says the musty adage, and ten cannot make him drink. We are bound to give the nobler animal credit for superior obstinacy if he chooses to exert it; and if he does, we are brought face to face with a difficulty which even Mr. TWEED, with all his diplomatic skill, may find insurmountable.

In this dilemma, sumptuary laws are of course out of the question. The unwashed are likewise the unterrified, and we might commit a fatal blunder did we once excite their fears that the bath was destined to deprive them of their strength, as Samson was bereft by Dalilah. Only one force can legitimately be exercised, and that is the force of public opinion. This should be expressed with emphasis and persistency through all the channels that are most influential and familiar with the classes to be benefited. We cannot, like the Hindoos or the Mohammedans, make of personal cleanliness a religious duty; but we may so associate it with the connected ideas of political freedom and personal self-respect as to be almost as obligatory. No Vermilion edict or Imperial phrase could be stronger than public opinion, if judiciously brought to bear for this salutary end. Let us hope that having given the people free baths, it will now issue its potential mandate that the people shall use them.

The Yale System of Education.

The earnest discussion which has been going on concerning the comparative merits of classical and scientific studies, is beginning to produce practical results at the great seats of learning. Several of our colleges have modified their courses in obedience to the more practical requirements of the time, but we believe that none of them have gone quite so far as Yale. In the new number of the College Courant we find a communication from Prof. JAMES D. DANA, giving a sketch of what he calls "the Yale University scheme." Substantially it amounts to the organization of two distinct colleges, one classical, and the other scientific. In each of these the first two years of the course are prescribed, but afterward a wide range of optional studies are offered to the student, thus allowing him to conform to the special requirement of his intended business or calling.

Graduates of the Academic College will receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and those of the Scientific School that of Bachelor of Philosophy. Post-graduates can, after two years' study, take the degree of Doctor of Philosophy; or after one year's study of engineering, they may take the degree of Civil Engineer. Prof. DANA states that the Yale scheme does not contemplate any important change in the Classical College, except to put the study of modern languages on a par with that of Latin and Greek, and he expresses the hope that ultimately a knowledge of French and German will be required from candidates for admission to the College.

The Perils of Omnibus Riding.

Superintendent JOUSDAN has done a wise thing in requiring omnibus drivers to conform to the regulation which has for some time been enforced against the car-drivers; namely, that they shall stop only on the further crossing, so as not to obstruct travel in the cross streets. He would do a wiser thing still if he would insist on their stopping, when desired, long enough to permit passengers to descend without risk of injury. Ladies, especially, are in constant danger of being tripped and thrown by their skirts catching the omnibus steps, which are ingeniously constructed to offer every facility for such accidents. Almost everybody must have seen women so thrown and dragged considerable distances before they could be rescued, or the stage stopped. And only a day or two ago an estimable young lady, lately married, the niece of a well-known citizen, died of injuries received from just such recklessness. It is time that this sort of thing should be stopped, and omnibus drivers taught that they are the servants and not the masters of the traveling public.

The most effectual remedy, perhaps, would be to abolish these vehicles altogether. They are slow, unwieldy, noisy, dirty and uncomfortable—and, as we have seen, in careless hands, positively dangerous. A cab company was some time since chartered, with much flourishing of trumpets and profuse promises of cheap and swift transportation. What has become of it? Has it died of inanition, or has it, like most other public-spirited enterprises of the sort with us, been bought off by the monopolies it was designed to supplant? Philadelphia has put into operation a similar cab system, which is found to be working admirably. We should like to hear from ours.

Town Aid to Railroads.

It might have been expected that the recent decision of the Supreme Court of Michigan, adverse to the constitutionality of the law which authorized towns to issue bonds in aid of railroads, would create much excitement, especially among the holders of that class of securities. Many millions of those bonds are held by capitalists who have invested their money on the faith of the laws of Michigan, but who are now powerless to enforce payment by legal means. The decision has elicited a very curious demonstration in the shape of adverse criticism from some of the ablest legal gentlemen of the State. Prof. CHARLES A. KENT, of the law department of the State University, has published an elaborate review of the decision and of the opinion of Chief Justice COOLEY, in which he dissents very strongly from the conclusion arrived at, and uses some very harsh language in reference to it.

He says the decision is "a judicial usurpation," but concedes that it is final, and that the only remedy consists in amending the State Constitution. He is of opinion that the discredited securities can be legalized in this way and no other, and calls upon the Governor of the State to convene the Legislature at once, so that the proposed amendment may be submitted to the people at the general election in November next. The question is one of grave importance, and no time should be lost in settling it. Prof. KENT's legal opinion is entitled to great weight, and he is, moreover, sustained by some of the most prominent lawyers at the Detroit Bar. The movement in favor of a constitutional amendment is being actively pressed.

Two Notable Deaths.

If PYTHAGORAS proves his own doctrine by living still, and if he reads the TIMES before breakfast, he must have found in yesterday's paper what seemed like a striking confirmation of the truth of metempsychosis. It was odd enough to read in this year of the world's creation that PHARAOH and MOSES had only just died—the one on Long Island, (it should have been in Southern Illinois,) being King of the once mighty tribe of Montauk Indians, now dwindled to twelve; the other, imperfectly disguised as MOSHESH, in Southern Africa, where he ruled the powerful nation of the Basutos. The career of the former seems shrouded in an Egyptian darkness, which is only intensified by the sudden and unlooked-for light that upon his death. We only know that the mantle of royalty, like a certain mantle of prophecy before, has fallen upon ELIJAH, who naturally, bearing the name he does, declines to receive it, and DAVID L. PHARAOH will wear it instead. Let us hope that he will avoid the errors of both the monarchs whose names he unites.

But MOSHESH, we are told, was a wise and mighty ruler who smote and slew the Amorites and the Midianites and Hittites of the neighborhood, succumbing at last only to certain Philistines of Englishmen from over sea. Less severe than the Hebrew prophet, who would "not suffer a witch to live," he abolished capital punishment for witchcraft, and with a more praiseworthy mingling of matrimony and traffic than the English gentleman in the last century, who swapped his wife for a bullock, he converted his superfluous cattle into spouses for his needy subjects. But his benevolence and his money were even surpassed by his wisdom, in which not even Solomon was his equal. For he contented himself with thirty or forty wives when he might have had hundreds instead. Truly a model chief; his people will be lucky if they can find a Joshua to succeed him.

Smuggling and Smugglers.

The Secretary of the Treasury in his letter to the House of Representatives, which we published on Saturday last, recommends a change in the system of encouraging Custom-house officers and informers to efficiency, by allowing them to share in the proceeds of forfeitures and penalties under the law. It is a system which has been a part of our revenue arrangements ever since the last century. The bill suggested by the Secretary has no application to the internal revenue, but it is manifest that the same rule should govern both Departments. He advises, indeed, that its principle should be extended to the internal revenue, and that District-Attorneys, also, should have no contingent compensations dependent upon revenue prosecutions.

The proposed change would no doubt remedy many evils connected with the present system of collection. It is, however, hardly probable that Congress will determine, so near the close of a session, upon such an experiment. But is there not something which the Department itself can do toward remedying the evils which now exist? The Secretary says: "It is a noticeable fact that nearly all the proceedings in the Courts are against the property, while the interest of the Government is much larger in convicting criminals than in securing any portion of the property smuggled." This is eminently true. The conviction of a smuggler in a criminal prosecution against him is an almost unknown event. For instance, a few weeks since there was a case in which diamonds were seized. It was stated as a matter of course that the smuggler was allowed to depart, but public attention being called to this manifest dereliction of duty, the diamond smuggler was arrested and held to answer a criminal charge. But why should this pressure upon the officers have been necessary? Can the Department do nothing to urge such prosecutions? Can it do nothing with the officers who fail to arrest parties who are engaged in these violations of the law? Is not every seizure of smuggled goods reported? If not, it should be; and the inquiry made whether the guilty parties have been punished, and if they have not, an explanation should be required from the officers who make the seizure. If the failure to arrest and prosecute a smuggler were made good ground for the discharge of such officers from the Government service, the evil of which the Secretary complains would be very seriously checked.

As long as no attempt is made to punish smugglers, the faults of the present system must continue, for, under it, it is the interest of the officers of the Government to encourage violations of the law. The experiment should be tried by the Treasury Department of insisting upon the prosecution of all smugglers, and holding to a rigid accountability every officer of the Government, whether District-Attorney, Collector or subordinate officer, who is remiss in either arresting or bringing to trial any such offender. This reform the Department has in its own power, without the need of any aid by legislation.

Our jealous preservation of individual freedom has hitherto prevented our submitting to a general ordinance of compulsory vaccination for small-pox. The efficacy of JENNER's method has survived all popular clamor against its enforcement in Europe, and by cable telegram we find that it has proved a thorough prophylactic during the late visitation of the disease in Paris. It is somewhat startling to learn that the Health Board of Brooklyn report fifty-six cases during the month of May, and that since Monday last five deaths have resulted from small-pox alone in that city. The deaths have occurred chiefly among the German families of a section of the Eastern District, and the utmost difficulty has been experienced by the officers in inducing the friends of the patients to allow their removal from the crowded accommodation of their homes to the public hospitals. The course of a malady so dreadful ought to be carefully watched and no exaggerated sentiment of "independence" allowed to interfere with measures for its prevention.

The defeat of each and all of the amendments introduced during the income tax debate, aiming at the taxation in one form or another of United States Bonds, will afford the world another proof how jealously the majority in Congress are determined to keep the national honor free from reproach. Backed by the general sentiment of the country, Congress has conclusively settled the question of our resolution to pay every cent of liability. With an honest and capable Administration, and so emphatic a condemnation of "repudiation," even in the most modified form, there can be no excuse for the most bigoted financial "authorities" shrewd persisting in their attempts to depreciate the value of United States securities.

Mr. GOLDWIN SMITH probably never did a more foolish thing in his life than when he put some to himself the sketch in Mr. DISRAELI's Lothair of an "Oxford Professor." Mr. DISRAELI simply makes a fool's cap, and labels it "For an Oxford Professor." Mr. GOLDWIN SMITH says not, "It's mine," and with it on his own head said the laughter of the spectators. The Professor supplements his performance by writing a letter to Mr. DISRAELI calling him a "coward." Well, it does not need much courage to write a letter of that sort. Mr. DISRAELI has been fighting a battle of one man against All England for upward of thirty years past, and even Mr. GOLDWIN SMITH knows well enough that he is no coward. His letter will, we fear, be regarded only as another proof of the identity of the Oxford Professor—for Mr. DISRAELI describes that personage as a man "unable to profit even by his limited experience of life, from a restless vanity and overflowing conceit, which prevented him from ever observing or thinking of anything but himself."

Fenianism would be a very terrible affair if its performances were half as formidable as its pleas. Simultaneously with the late raid upon Canada, it was arranged, it appears, to blow up the English dockyards. It is not stated at what point the signal was to have been given, but the British section of the Brotherhood waited in vain for the word of command, and instead of quietly dropping the scheme, the leaders, with that amazing family which so generally distinguishes them, have shown symptoms of persevering in a plot which can only entangle a few more poor fellows in jail.

Spain appeared to the world to have risen in a single day from the gloom of centuries of bigotry, to the light of civil and religious freedom. A circumstance like that reported by cable, shows, however, that the mind of the people must have been gradually preparing for the recoil against that ecclesiastical and royal despotism under which they so long bent. When the inhabitants of a Spanish country village, which used to mean a very stronghold of unquestioning and abject faith, are found rebelling against a tax for the maintenance of the clergy, the new life must have penetrated very deeply, indeed too deeply to have grown so rapidly as appears on the surface.

RED CLOUD has not studied men and civilization from the altitude of a hotel balcony in vain. In a very short talk with the Chiefs of the Indian Bureau he managed to give them a reminder on the subject of courtesy, and to express the startling request to have his arrival telegraphed to the Plains. In what philologic puzzle of inked sweetness, long drawn out, he succeeded in conveying the idea of telegram we can only guess at. Let us hope that the formidable compound will not escape the attention of the learned.

The ten thousand citizens of Rhode Island who imagined that the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments nullified the Suffrage laws of that State, will consider themselves hardly treated by the Senate Committee's report on their petition. The State Constitution confers the franchise upon "all" citizens who own real estate worth $134, or which rents for $7 a year, but the only qualification necessary for "native" citizens is the payment of an annual tax of $1. As the Committee report, this provision has nothing to do with the terms of the Fifteenth Amendment, which forbids denial of the suffrage on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude, and mentions no other cause for disability. But it may possibly be doubtful whether the report may not be questioned with reference to the Fourteenth Amendment, which says that "no State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States." The claim might be advanced, and perhaps not without reason, that Rhode Island contravenes this provision by refusing to give franchise to the petitioners in question, who are citizens, but disqualified under the State law.

The possible removal of the National Capitol at some date in the remote future affords no reason why the grounds surrounding the present building should be left in their present incomplete condition. As a correspondent very justly remarks, if the removal ever does take place, it will be only after years of discussion. Meanwhile these grounds are an eye-sore to the Washington public, and not very creditable to the nation. If it was worth while to study architectural effect in constructing the Capitol, and to spend ten millions or thereabouts upon a magnificent edifice, another moderate appropriation might perhaps be devoted to putting its surroundings in a respectable condition.

The revival of reformed doctrine in Austria, to which we lately adverted, was illustrated by the production of a letter at the Tuesday's meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, now in session at Philadelphia, from their co-Presbyters of the kingdom of Bohemia. Four hundred years ago "the disciples of JOHN HUSS" sought union and fellowship with those of a like mode of thinking in Europe and Asia, and now that the long, dreary night of repression and compulsory isolation has passed, their successors stretch out brotherly hands to what was then an unopened world for Christianity. The resolution to send delegates to the Church in Bohemia will tend to strengthen a bond which possesses much interest and significance.

A correspondent writes from Richmond to assure us that the gentleman in England who lately staked $2,000 on his belief, is not solitary in denying the convexity of the earth. The arguments of our correspondent are chiefly employed in showing that the surface of water must be level, or it would never come to a stand-still. These arguments are nearly as bewildering as some of Lord Dundreary's celebrated puzzles, and anything like an intelligible statement of them is out of the question. Their tenor may be judged of from the closing paragraph of the letter: "The world is round or nearly enough so. But all that we know of it is on the same level. The rolling around it is a humbug. The needle varies and the vessel goes round a center. When a vessel finds the poles I shall believe in your theory." When our correspondent tells us something about the under side of his mundane table, we shall be in a position to discuss his theory.

Objectionable as is the excess with which the representations of opera bouffe have made our theatrical audiences too familiar, we have supposed that the performance was regarded as outside of the legitimate range of municipal interference. The authorities did not interfere with it in Boston, and this might be regarded as a crucial test of the principle in question. It has, however, been reserved for the veritable "modern Athens" to appropriate a distinction disclosed by the three-hilled city. The Magistrates of Edinburgh have positively interdicted the dance, and this when Mme. SCHNEIDER, its high priestess, was to be its interpreter. After this the claims of Boston to superior decorum, if not to superior critical discernment, must be disallowed.

THE FENIAN MOVEMENT.

Feeling on the Canada Side—Multiplicity of Rumors—Arrival of Fenian Prisoners in Montreal—Their Probable Fate.

From Our Special Correspondent.

MONTREAL, Wednesday, June 1, 1870.

Having witnessed the final close and miserable result of the invasion movement against Canada by the Fenian rabble, I crossed the borders, and at first proceeded to sound public sentiment in regard to the invasion itself, and the action taken by the American Government. Scarcely had I passed the inspection of the Customs officers of the Province line, than I found the people greatly excited over the startling events that had occurred near their neighborhood. At every station the scarlet and dark green uniforms of the volunteers were visible, and the various strategic points were heavily garrisoned by troops of all arms. The citizens were of feverish pulse, and general business seemed much neglected and dull. There were no symptoms of a "scare" visible, however; the Canadian people were not at all afraid of the Fenians, notwithstanding the sensational reports to the contrary, that some of your contemporaries delight in publishing. The great topic of the hour is, of course, the Fenian movement, and the thousand and one rumors already afloat were repeated in car and hotel, until those listening scarcely knew which were false or which were true. One man would excitedly relate that the Fenians had made a second attack upon the Canadian troops near Trout River, and had made so desperate a fight of it that over twenty of them had been killed outright and any number wounded. Another insisted that Prince ARTHUR had been present at the battle of Cook's Corners, and as he had commanded the Canadians in person, they had presented him with the uniform worn by the Fenian who had been killed. In fact, it seemed that no rumor was too improbable for belief, and as the newspapers on this side did not appear to rightly discriminate between the multitude of rumors coming into their hands, their readers naturally became confused with the situation, and I very much fear it will require some days before the late movement will be properly comprehended.

ARRIVAL OF A FENIAN PRISONER.

The citizens of Montreal were considerably excited yesterday afternoon by the arrival of a Fenian taken prisoner on Friday last on Trout River. This unfortunate man gave his name as JAMES MOORE, and said he was a native of Fairfield, Vt. According to his statements he is not in reality a Fenian, though the allegation will, of course, not be believed, and will not do him any good when brought to the speedy trial already determined upon for all those now under arrest. MOORE says he has served in the United States Regular army for over eight years, and received his final discharge in December last. Since then his parents crossed the line, and now reside in the village of Harrisburg, near St Johns. Happening to be loitering about the railroad depot in Troy on the 25th ult., he was accosted by two strange men, who inquired if he did not want to go to Canada and "help to take it." MOORE had, according to his story, a great desire to visit his parents, and having no money agreed to join the Fenian movement with the intention of deserting at the first favorable opportunity. On arriving at the Trout River camp MOORE was thrown into the advance or picket guard, and found himself, soon after, under the fire of the advancing column of Canadian troops. As the Fenians began to break and follow the example of their redoubtable leader, Gen. STARR, in running for the American side of the line, MOORE resisted the temptation to escape, and having thrown off his jacket crawled among some bushes in a swampy hole, near the battle-ground. While thus concealed two farmers discovered and arrested him. MOORE would have been shot there and then by another farmer named WILLIAM HOLDSWORTH, who had already taken aim, when his rifle was pushed aside by two of the soldiers of the Sixty-ninth Regulars. Two Fenian uniforms and a few rifles were picked up near MOORE'S hiding-place, and these, with other facts, will probably prove a strong chain of circumstantial evidence against the prisoner. His probable fate is being even now discussed, and the universal feeling in this part of the Dominion is that he and the other Fenian prisoners should be executed, in order to show the Brotherhood that the Canadian Government is determined to crush any future movement by the sternest measures. The four other prisoners that were secured at the first battle near Franklin Centre are daily expected here, and they will all be speedily tried. When MOORE was escorted by the local Police through the streets in a carriage the populace acted in a very disorderly manner, and uttered the fiercest threats against the trembling man, who appeared to think his chances of life were very slight. I have no doubt that in the event of the prisoners being convicted of having committed acts of hostility against her Majesty's Government, they will be hung as traitors and malcontents.

INTENSE ARDOR OF THE CANADIAN TROOPS.

Nothing is so striking to the visitor to Canadian territory, as the martial ardor displayed by the volunteer and regular troops, now on duty in the various garrisons and towns along the Eastern frontier. The men have been so completely harassed and annoyed by the constant repeated calls upon their time and patience, by the threatened movements of the Fenian Brotherhood and their nonsensical army, that now the invasion has been really attempted, they are only disappointed that they failed to find an opportunity to show their strength in a regular pitched battle. I heard nothing in saying that they had is not been for the impetuosity of the Home Guards and the armed citizens along the lines, the Fenian invaders would have suffered more severely. The result of the invasion is, however, a happy one, for which the Canadians have avenged those volunteers who fell four years ago at Ridgeway. They have no losses to regret, a singularly bright feature in the picture compared with the view afforded in 1866.

CONTRADICTION OF FALSE RUMORS.

I find that there are many statements of alleged facts, connected with the late movement, an active circulation on both sides of the line, and, as usual in such cases, the rumors gain in volume as they recede from the scene. The more ridiculous of these are the statements that the Prince was present on the frontier during the progress of hostilities; another is that the Canadians imitated the prairie Indians in mutilating and insulting the remains of the Fenian Brown, who fell at Cook's Four Corners. They did nothing of the kind, simply giving the body of the man decent burial, and erecting over his shallow grave a cairn of stones as a monument to the brave manner of BROWN's death. Ridiculous stories of outrages, committed by the Canadians on United States soil at Trout River, were industriously circulated and partially believed at St. Albans and Malone, and on this side there are many intelligent people who firmly believe that the Fenians were permitted by the residents of the towns already mentioned, to equip themselves in their streets for the proposed foray into the frontier. Instead of correcting these and kindred rumors, the Canadian newspapers gravely repeat each and all in their eager efforts to fill the columns with "news" of the Fenian movements. Of course such a state of affairs is to be expected, but it is unfortunate, nevertheless, as the existing excitement is by no means allayed, and the antagonistic feelings which exist as they are, are only intensified and embittered. I am only too glad to bear witness to the healthy tone of public sentiment on this side, and am glad to find that the prompt action of the United States Government in checking the Fenian movement, is appreciated here at its full value. The fact is universally admitted here that the Canadian Government is deeply indebted to President GRANT's Administration for the actual failure of the so-called invasive movement, for Canadians all seem to realize that if the Fenians had received only a quiet support from our Government, the effort at resistance would have proved a more serious one than it did. The friendly cordial relations existing between the Officers and Washington authorities will, no doubt, lead to important results in the future and extinguish many former differences in border relations and government. The Williamstown Riot—A Card from the Conductor—No Shots Fired by the Troops.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., June 3.—Mr. TULLER, a conductor on the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg Railroad, has published the following card:

To the Press of the Country:

Having seen a dispatch to the Press stating that the United States troops fired on the Fenians during the riot at Williamstown, N. Y., on the 1st of June, I beg leave to give, in justice to the troops and their commander, Lieut. GEO. W. DESHLER, First Artillery, a correct statement of the affair. On the arrival of the train at Williamstown, a few New-York roughs left the train and got into a dispute at a hotel. The train starting before they got on board some of their party got into the cars, containing about six Fenians and forty roughs. The Fenians disarmed all this and a riot commenced, the roughs drawing their revolvers and shooting in every direction. At this stage of the affair, having run back my train, and abandoning the idea of my passengers in danger, I requested Lieut. DESHLER to take his men and stop the fight. He did so, in a manner distinct and decisive, having dismounted at a distance up a steep bank under a heavy fire before he could form. Then having formed, with six men he walked upon the rioters to disarm them, and charged in front of his party with fixed bayonets. Without firing a shot the disturbance was quelled, and the prisoners were in the cars in less than five minutes after the charge was made.

An announcement printed elsewhere gives a full list of the artists engaged for the Beethoven Festival to occur week after next, of the American Institute Collegium. We reproduce the names of the sole performers and of the principal musicians, for the purpose of record. The directors have positively secured the vocal co-operation of Miss Parepa-Rosa, Miss Kellogg, Mrs. Caroline Richings-Bernard, Mrs. Howard Paul, Mme. Gazzaniga, Miss Hersee, Miss McCulloch, Mrs. Seguin, Mlle. Cantini, Miss Rotter, Mme. Johannsen, Mlle. Dufaux, Mme. Anna Bishop, Signor Brignoli, Signor Lefranc, Mr. Castle, Herr Habelmann, Signor Filippi, Mr. Bordibon, Signor Maximilian, Signor Lotti, Herr Herrmann, Mr. Whitney, Mr. S. C. Campbell, Mr. Drayton, Signor Petrilli, Signor Reyna, Signor Guard, Signor Randolfi, Mr. H. Peakes and Mr. W. Formes. The principal choral aid will be supplied by the Handel and Haydn Society, of Boston, numbering 500 members, while local organizations and societies from the neighboring towns will swell the mass to 3,000 voices. A collosum organ, especially built for the occasion, will strengthen an orchestra of 500 members and four military bands, the last named bodies being Gilmore's Boston Band, and Dodworth's, Grafulla's and Downing's Bands, from this City. To the list of conductors already printed, and embracing Messrs. BERGMANN, ZERRAHN, MARETZEK and PECH, is to be added the name of Mr. CARL ROSA. It is evident that if the Boston Festival had the merit of relative originality, it presented no combination of great and varied talent at all approaching that promised by the management of this year's musical demonstration.

CONCERT AT THE HOLY TRINITY CHURCH.

An interesting concert was given, Thursday evening, at the Holy Trinity Church, corner of One Hundred and Twenty-fifth-street and Fifth-avenue. An exhibition of the new grand organ was offered by Messrs. Warren, Burnap, Dayforth and Daniels, and Miss Nettie Sterling and Mrs. C. H. Bosworth sang to the general delight. The audience was very numerous.

MR. FECHTER AND MISS LECLERCQ.

The farewell performances of these distinguished artists take place this afternoon and this evening. Today, "A Wolf in Sheep's Clothing," with Miss LECLERCQ in a character which she fills with unsurpassable truthfulness, variety of expression and grace, and "The Corsican Brothers," with Mr. FECHTER as the Di Franchi, will constitute the entertainment. Tonight, the two performers will close their engagement by a representation of "The Lady of Lyons."

WALLACK'S THEATER.

This afternoon and this evening the closing performances of the season at Wallack's Theater may be attended. By day, "Americans in Paris" and "Is She Jealous" will be acted; by night, the representation will have for material LOVEL's comedy of "Love's Sacrifice."

MISS THOMPSON'S BENEFIT.

Niblo's Theater was crowded last evening, on the occasion of the benefit performance of Miss LYDIA THOMPSON. "The Little Rebel" and "Trion" were acted, and at the close of the extravaganza Miss THOMPSON addressed the audience briefly and promised a speedy return.

Capture of the Notorious Sidra—Peace at Last—Return of United States Consul Weiner—Legislature—Paper Money—Business Overdone.

From Our Own Correspondent.

AUX CAYES, Saturday, May 14, 1870.

The dispersion and capture of the band of outlaws under the command of the notorious SIDRA, has been finally completed by the capture of the scoundrel himself, after he had for many weeks eluded the vigilance of the Government troops, who searched the woods foot by foot. He is expected here today, and will be immediately brought to trial for his many crimes. No pity is felt here for him, and it is not at all likely that he will obtain any mercy. The taking of this man ends the last of the movements in the South consequent upon the late revolution, so that there is every reason to expect perfect quiet for the present, for the first time in nearly three years.

United States Consul WEINER, who went at the request of SAGET to offer terms to the rebels, and was held by their chief, DELGRACE JACQUET, as a hostage for the safety of his own life, was, on the number of the Fenians taken by JACQUET into the mountains. But after JACQUET himself was captured and shot, Mr. WEINER was allowed by his captors to return, and he is now safe at his post at Jeremie.

The Legislature is in session at Port-au-Prince, and has a great deal of work before it. The paper money question, which is meeting the attention of all classes, will be taken up, and it is hoped that some plan for relief from the present difficulties may be arrived it. Business is rather overdone at present. The impetus given it by the restoration of peace has carried it a little too far. Nourrison goods have arrived at Port-au-Prince since the Boston sailing, and every vessel bringing large freights. Besides this, we have a number of sailing vessels and two steamers from New-York, with full and assorted cargoes.

Letter from Admiral Farragut.

Admiral FARRAGUT was invited by the Committee of Arrangements to be present at the decoration of the graves of Union soldiers in Knoxville, Tenn., on Memorial Day, and in reply sent the following interesting letter:

NEW-YORK, Monday, May 23, 1870.

GENTLEMEN: I have the pleasure to acknowledge the receipt of your kind communication of the 19th inst., inviting me to revisit the scenes of my childhood, and unite with you in your proposed commemoration on the 30th inst., of decorating the graves of the gallant men who fell in defense of our Union; and, at the same time, tendering me your "friendly hospitalities."

I cannot well express to you the pain it gives me to decline an invitation, the acceptance of which would afford me so much gratification. I have long anticipated, with feelings of no ordinary character, a visit to those places which so deeply impressed upon my memory, and the renewal of associations long severed by the decrees of fortune; but my health still denies me the privilege of gratifying this desire, and I must, therefore, indulge the hope that the opportunity may yet be granted me, when I assure you nothing will give me more real pleasure than the visit you have so kindly proposed.

Accept, gentlemen, my sincerest thanks for the friendly and complimentary terms in which you have conveyed the invitation; and, rest assured, that your kind expressions will not be among the least of the many gratifying evidences I have received of the unchanging confidence of my fellow-citizens.

Assuring you of my sympathies in your sad commemoration on the 30th inst., and reiterating my sincere gratitude for your very friendly invitation, I remain, gentlemen, very truly and respectfully, Your friend and fellow-citizen,

D. G. FARRAGUT,
Admiral United States Navy.

The Sunday Dance Question in Milwaukee.

From the Milwaukee Wisconsin, June 1.

It has been stated that the Turners of this city, a large, powerful and wealthy organization, were about to contest the legality of the Sunday dance-house ordinance. While laying claim to no particular regard for the fatlback over any other day in the week, the Turners protest they are not a law-breaking people, and that they are not only willing but anxious, to obey all just statutes, whether objectional to them or not. They say that the new ordinance encroaches upon their religious and civil rights; nevertheless, if it is decided by the authorities to be constitutional, they shall submit without murmuring. To test this constitutionality is their object, and to do this they are now raising the necessary money. When everything is ready they will put up a demur, furnish the evidence against themselves if necessary, and on the following day bring the responsible parties into Court at the request of the authorities, that a trial may take place. If the verdict is against them the matter will be taken to superior Courts on appeal; and if these the verdict is sustained, that is the end of it, and they will have nothing further to do with Sunday dancing. The Turners have retained some of the best legal talent in the city to look after their case.

POLICE TRIALS.

Unpromonable Pits—Encouraging Private Detectives—Dismissal of the Sergeants—Special Sergeants.

The following are the most important of the cases which were tried before Police Commissioner BERRIMAN yesterday:

MICHAEL MOLAN, patrolman Twenty-third Precinct, was charged with neglect of duty, the specification being that he was asleep in the sitting-room of the Station-house when he should have been upon post. The roundsman serviced to this effect. MOLAN attempted to badger the witnesses against him in the usual style of "Sidney Shyster," but was cut short by a reference of the case to the Board.

PHILIP SMYTH, patrolman of the First Precinct, was charged with improper conduct, it being alleged that a citizen inquiring for a detective he referred him to two private agencies, and did not inquire his business. SMYTH admitted that he had done so, but stated that the citizen had asked distinctly where he could find a private detective, and he thought it was his duty to give such information as he had. The offense of thrusting unnecessary business upon detectives instead of sending it to the Police matters to the Sergeants, and Commissioner BERRIMAN reprobating the course of the officer referred the case to the Board.

JOHN R. GROO, roundsman, late in the Twenty-ninth Precinct, was charged by Capt. BURDAN with neglect of duty, in that he did not visit Twenty-seventh-street and Sixth-avenue for three hours, from 1:10 A. M. to 4:05 A. M., instead of visiting the men. The case grew out of complaints made by GROO against officers which he obtained by waiting there. Commissioner BERRIMAN remarked that he was glad the complaint had been elicited, as it was possible to get a decision of the Board in the matter. GROO, it may be said, he entirely disproved of the practice of roundsmen waiting for long periods of time for the purpose of detecting one or two officers in derelictions and thereby neglecting the entire Precinct. The case was referred to the Board.

THOMAS MCARTHUR, Twenty-fifth Precinct, was charged with improper conduct by CHARLES J. MURPHY, No. 109 Pearl-street, who stated that MCARTHUR had outrageously abused a woman at the corner of Broadway and Worth-street. The accused stated that he had positive orders from Capt. MILLER to remove all beggars from Broadway, and the woman was one of those who was begging, he had used no violence whatsoever. This view of the matter being corroborated by Mr. VAN NESS and Mr. GROENER, Broadway merchants, whose stores are near the scene of the alleged outrage, the charge against MCARTHUR was dismissed.

Blockade-runners and Petroleum Warrior, Tenth Precinct, were charged with clubbing MORRIS BROCKMAN, No. 23 Bowery. He is the keeper of a low concert-saloon, one of the vilest resorts of the east side, and has had frequent collisions with the Police, and has several times appeared as complainant against them. On this occasion, he came out of the house and disturbance in the saloon, and BROCKMAN was arrested by SCHUITE and WESTON on a charge of larceny, and it was alleged that while in custody, on the way to the Station-house, he was brutally clubbed by the two officers, to which fact there were several witnesses, one being Sergeant BAUMGARTEN of the Tenth Precinct.

The case was referred to the Board, with a significant remark from Commissioner BERRIMAN that the investigation would probably extend much farther than as to the alleged outrage upon BROCKMAN.

The sensation of the day was found in the last cases, being the complaints of Superintendent JOURDAN against Sergeants GEO. W. TOWNSEND, Third Precinct; WALTER L. SANDFORD, Second Precinct, and WM. J. ROBINSON, of the Twenty-sixth Precinct, for neglect of duty. The first-named was not present, having submitted the case. As to SANDERS, Superintendent JOURDAN testified that between 3 and 4 o'clock Sunday morning, he went to the Second Precinct Station-house, found all the lights turned down to a glimmer, and no one in the office. After searching about some time, he found SANDFORD lying down on the table in the back room. The accused admitted the fact, and had very little to say in extenuation. The Superintendent had about the same state of facts as to ROBINSON, of the Twenty-sixth Precinct, who was also lying down in the back room, but had taken the precaution to put the doorman, who has since been dismissed, and Patrolman LYNCH, who was also tried for neglect of duty, on guard in the office, but they were also unfortunately caught napping by Superintendent JOURDAN. ROBINSON fought hard to explain away the dilemma in which he was placed. Subsequently the Board met in the room of President BOSWORTH, and Sergts. SANDFORD, ROBINSON and TOWNSEND were dismissed from the Department.

Reckless Firing in the Street—Two Persons Wounded.

AUGUST SANDFORD and CHARLES SOMERS, colored boys, became involved last night in an affray at the corner of Seventh-avenue and Thirty-first-street, during which SANDFORD fired at his opponent with a revolver, but the shot missing him took effect in the left arm of GEO. POWELL, a boy who was looking on, but not causing a serious wound. A second shot was fired by SANDFORD, which also went astray, striking Mrs. CASSIDAY, of No. 148 Seventh-avenue, who was passing, in the face, making a very serious wound. She was taken to her home by the Police, who also endeavored to apprehend the careless Vulcans, but only SOMERS was caught, who was arrested by Officer FLEMING, of the Twentieth Precinct, the other, and the one who had done the firing, making his escape and being still at large. The affair excited intense excitement in the neighborhood, as numerous lives were imperiled by this wanton use of a pistol in a crowded locality.

Fires in May.

The report of the Fire Marshal gives the following statistics for May: There were 65 fires during the month, of these 11 were caused by carelessness of occupants; 6 were caused by defective flues; 6 by kerosene; 2 by overheated stoves; 3 by incendiaries; 11 were of unknown origin, and the remainder originated from a variety of accidental causes. The number of fires in which the loss was less than $100 was twenty-nine; between $100 and $1,000 seventeen; between $1,000 and $5,000 ten; between $5,000 and $10,000 two; between $10,000 and $20,000, four; between $20,000 and $50,000, two; over $50,000, one—sixty-five; loss on buildings, $25,285; loss on stock, $235,545; total, $261,030; insurance on buildings, $205,800; insurance on stock, $540,050; total, $745,850. Comparative statement of fires, losses and insurance: For May, 1869, number of fires, fifty-eight; May, 1870, sixty-five; loss May, 1869, $229,005; May, 1870, $261,030; insurance May, 1869, $1,492,850; May, 1870, $745,850.

Arrest of a Confidence Operator.

On the 15th of February last, AUGUSTUS LATZ, being on his way to Germany, fell into the jaws of one of the pick-charks known as JACOB OTTO, of No. 4 Carlisle-street, who was not only kind enough to exchange his greenbacks into gold, but also assisted him to place the bale which should have contained $400 in safe about his person, the moment permitting him to take the trouble of examining it. When four days out at sea, LATZ took off his belt to gloat over his treasure, and found a worthless metal instead of gold. Returning to the City as soon as possible, he applied to Superintendent JOURDAN for relief, and a warrant having been issued from Justice Dowling, OTTO was arrested, last evening, by Detective TILLY, of the General Police. The accused was locked up last night at the Central Police Office, and will be arraigned at the Tombs Police Court this morning.

The last game in the series at the Brooklyn Assembly Rooms for the championship of Long Island, was played last night between Messrs. KIRKLY and ROGERS, and was won by the latter by 112 points. Fatal Accident on the Flushing Railroad.

Yesterday morning as the 10¾ express train on the Flushing and South-side Railroad from Hunter's Point was passing the Winfield Station, CHAS. E. GRIFFIN, one of the firm of GRIFFIN & CARPENTER, importers and jobbers in cloth, No. 40 Franklin-street, this City, and residing at Whitestone, was run over and fatally injured. It seems that he was waiting for a train on the Long Island Railroad, and as that road has no depot at the station he stepped on the Flushing depot. As the train was coming toward Winfield Mr. GRIFFIN was standing on the platform and deliberately walked down the steps at the end of the platform and attempted to cross before the approaching train, which does not stop at this station. It is supposed that the unfortunate man must have thought the train approaching was the Long Island train, as he made the remark; "There comes my train." The two railroads run parallel here, and people are often deceived with the trains, and passengers for the Long Island trains often occupy the Flushing depot, thereby making the situation more dangerous, as to reach the platform of the former road two tracks have to be crossed. It will be remembered that his employe of the Long Island Road was killed a short time since while attempting to cross in this manner. Mr. GRIFFIN had his skull fractured and one of his legs broken in two places, and it is feared is injured internally. Dr. WRIGHT, of Winfield, attended him, as did also Dr. REINIE, of College Point, and down by the cars to their respective residences. His injuries fatal. Upon his person was found a check for $40 and $9 in cash. Mr. GRIFFIN was taken home by a special train provided by the Company.

Petroleum as Fuel.

From the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph, May 27.

Ever since the discovery of petroleum, its utilization as a fuel, especially for the generation of steam, has engaged the attention of engineers, and innumerable experiments have been made, but until recently without practical results. None of the methods that have been tried hitherto have produced the perfect combustion that is necessary if the oil is to be brought into general use as a fuel, and in the most promising experiments, such as those carried on under the auspices of the Navy Department, a deposit of solid carbon resulted that speedily closed up the tubes of the boiler and baffled the engineers. It was the general opinion among engineers, however, that there was a way, and almost of necessity a very simple one, for producing the perfect combustion of the oil which would render its application to steam boilers safe and desirable. It is believed that this method has now been discovered and the great problem solved by the invention of Messrs. WHIPPLE & DICKERSON, by which the petroleum is vaporized by means of superheated steam, and then burned in combination with superheated steam. In this way the oil itself does not come in contact with the flame, while by opening a jet of highly heated steam into the vapor of the oil, a more perfect combustion and a more intense heat are produced than by any other known method. This invention has been brought to such a state of perfection that it is now possible to supply to boilers of every description, and there appears to be no reason why, in a large number of instances at least, it should not bring petroleum into use for steam-generating purposes as a substitute for coal and other fuels. For some time past the apparatus of Messrs. WHIPPLE & DICKERSON has been in practical operation at the hollow-ware foundry of Messrs. Sawyer & Co., Front and Reed streets, and yesterday it was inspected by a number of members of the Press and others interested. The saving in the cost of fuel is estimated at from thirty to fifty per cent, and it does the work in a much better manner than coal ever did. With the petroleum it is easy to maintain a constant equal pressure of sixty pounds of steam per gauge, whereas with coal the pressure could scarcely ever be raised above forty, and when heavy work was being done it was not possible to keep a pressure of more than twenty-five or thirty pounds per gauge. The importance of keeping an equal pressure at all times will be apparent to all who use steam in factories and mills, and as there is no cleaning of fires or throwing on fresh fuel, it is easy to regulate the apparatus so that a constant and uniform heat is maintained without the slightest difficulty. The invention seems to be especially applicable to locomotive engines, and in order to make a practical test the Pennsylvania Central Railroad has turned over one of its locomotives to Messrs. WHIPPLE & DICKERSON for the purpose of experiment. There are doubtless many matters of detail with regard to the application of this method of burning petroleum that require to be perfected before it can be brought into universal use, but the main problem appears to be solved satisfactorily, and the rest is but a question of time and ingenuity.

REFORMED PROTESTANT CHURCH.

The National Synod at Newark—Third Day's Proceedings.

The National Synod of the Reformed Protestant Church of America held its third day's session in the North Reformed Church, Newark, yesterday.

The annual report of the Board of Domestic Missions was presented by Rev. J. WEBB. It speaks of the Gospel having been brought to 3,918 families, of the enlarging of the field, 951 having been added to the Church, of which 160 were from the Sunday-schools under the care of the Board. At the West the number of missionaries is increasing, while at the East they are decreasing. Churches have been erected at several stations; a lady of Philadelphia sustains one mission at Norris, Ill. The debt of the Board is $12,681; the receipts from all sources have been $26,200, but at least $50,000 will be needed next year.

The report of the Board of Foreign Missions, presented by Rev. Dr. FERRIS, shows that there has been a heavy falling off in contributions, and that the year closes with a debt of $25,000. The Mission in India covers a large territory, the extreme stations being 120 miles apart. The Amoy mission had 428 communicants. The Heidelberg Catechism has been translated into the Tamul language. A large part of the report is devoted to a history of the progress of the Church in Japan, where the missions have been very successful.

The sixteenth annual report of the Board of Publication states that a cordial support has been given to the Board during the year, and that they have issued many valuable publications.

The Secretary of the Board of Education, Rev. Dr. LEE, of New-York, reported that 184 churches had contributed to the Educational Fund. The Board was still in debt, and the more liberal assistance of the entire Church was solicited. The Secretary, in concluding his address, made a strong argument in favor of reading the Bible in the schools.

The Secretary of the Sabbath Committee of New-York, Mr. ATTLEBURY, addressed the Synod on the subject of Sabbath desecration.

In the afternoon, Rev. Dr. PATTERSON, of the Canadian Presbyterian Church, and Rev. Dr. BUSSO, of the German Reformed Church, took leave of the synod in appropriate speeches, which were answered by President VERMILYE in a very appropriate manner. In the evening, Rev. J. R. ALLISON, of Jamaica, L. I., chairman of the Judicial Committee, reported in the cases of Rev. G. W. CONNAUGHT and Rev. WM. DEMAREST for the consideration of the Synod. The latter appealed from the decision of the particular Synod of New-Brunswick, which sustained the action of the members of the church at Raritan, (of which Rev. Mr. DEMAREST was pastor,) who dismissed the reverend gentleman because his sermons were not sufficiently edifying and full of the flowers of eloquence. On motion of Rev. Dr. TAYLOR, the further consideration of the case was adjourned till this morning, in order to have the records of the New-Brunswick Synod for reference. Mr. CONNAUGHT's trial will proceed on Monday.

NEW-JERSEY.

The Executive Committee appointed by the Montclair and Bloomfield Railroad Commissioners met at the office of W. A. TORREY, Nos. 9 and 11 Park-place, New-York, on Wednesday, and adopted a report declaring that the course of the Railroad Company is substantially a breach of contract, and that any allegations or pretexts under which it is sought to justify it, must be referred to what is invidiously called "sharp practice." They do not feel that the offer to correct communication tickets and refund what may be left after local fare has been paid for what riding has already been done upon them, relieves this unfavorable aspect of the affair. In reference to legal measures, the Committee have not yet decided, but hope to take any action, but they little doubt to what result it would lead. It was resolved that a meeting of citizens be called, by public notice, at such time as shall seem advisable to the Chairman of the Committee, and that all interested parties on both lines of the roads be cordially invited to attend.
